—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

FRENCH RADICALS control the government, having got rid of Tardieu, semi-conservative. If France makes that fuss about 300,000 idle, what would she do if eight millions were out of work?

IN MANCHURIA, Japan's forces, crowded by hordes of poorly organized Chinese, are pressing close to Russia's border and "the Soviet Government is gravely anxious."

AT NAGASAKI, Japan, the United States consulate was bombed, just before noon yesterday, supposedly from a passing automobile. The fire was put out, nobody hurt. That doesn't make this government "gravely anxious" but it should remind us to keep our defense apparatus in good order and not to tie ourselves up in any World Court.

MANY PEOPLE in this world are worth while, although they rarely appear in print on newspapers front pages. Mrs. E. Ozanne, of New York, lost her pocketbook, containing $18.83, borrowed to pay her rent. Matthew Horan, conductor of a Fifth avenue omnibus, found the purse on the floor of his omnibus and returned it to the loser. She sent him $3 "for his honesty," writing:

"As you could see by the papers in my bag I had not paid my rent in three months. I wish I could send you three times as much, but I have been out of work for seven months and I have a boy to support. I cried all night when I lost the money."

Matthew Horan returned the three dollars with:

"Your thanks are sufficient reward."

MERCHANTS, NEWSPAPERS and the public are interested in proof of the fact that it pays to advertise energetically, when you offer what the people want.

This was demonstrated in Boston last week by Houghton & Dutton, one of the oldest department stores in America, advertising a "Houghton's Today" sale for last Saturday.

Anthony W. Ackerman, general manager, published on Friday a 12-page advertising section in the Boston American, which dominates circulation in the Boston evening field.

Mr. Ackerman knows that it does not pay to whisper, if you can afford to shout, and sales for the day were above $225,000, compared with a sale of $66,000 for the same event a year ago.

Advertising pays, if you know how, have the goods, and use the right medium.

A Wall street man yesterday remarked:

"You would be surprised to know how many of my friends have taken the trouble to look up the names of their congressmen, so they could write about taxes."

In New York City, at least four million Americans could not tell you the name of the men that represent them in Congress.

A NEW JERSEY farmer said:

"We are tired of seeing signs on gas stations, telling about increased taxes. We are tired of buying taxes, instead of buying gas, and we are not going to stand it."

In New York City, real estate owners notify their local government that there ought to be some end to robbery through taxation.

In New York, you can take your choice of properties offered for sale at about half the city's assessed taxation.

Interviewing Police Commissioner Mulrooney, of New York, in the June number of Cosmopolitan Magazine, Damon Runyon shows that kidnapings may be expected to increase, because hard times have made bootlegging less profitable. According to Commissioner Mulrooney:

"The mobsman, driven to the wall by depression, enters a new phase of his activities, and turns to kidnaping."

No other civilized country would tolerate such conditions of mob rule.

REPORTERS SAY Chicago's gangs are divided among twenty leaders, not one yet daring to take the place of Al Capone. Another Capone will arise in time, meanwhile, "gunmen's automatics are barking." Detectives pursued five gunmen on the West Side, the five returned to the Roxy Hotel with a machine gun, and "sprayed lead" over the police car and the restaurant where the detectives were eating. The policemen dropped to the floor and saved their lives.

No one would speak lightly of prohibition, based on a sincere desire to help the human race and "put an end to crime," but it certainly has made life more exciting than it used to be, thanks to the bootleg industry.

WHILE CHICAGO'S machine gunners were busy, another machine gunner was similarly busy in far-away Garfield, New Jersey, hidden in a building. The New Jersey gunner was interested in Joseph Bonfonti and Harold Schlessinger. He shot them both.

Mr. Schlessinger's family is unfortunate. His brother, "Wild Bill" Schlessinger, and another gangster were tortured and killed by bootleg rivals three years ago.

RACY BOOKS VANISH IN FILM SUIT

International News Service.

LOS ANGELES, May 10.—The finger of suspicion revolved around and around in Superior Judge Thomas Ambrose court today.

Someone had stolen two pretty books, "Scenes in the East" and "Fanny Hill's Memoirs," which had been brought to the courtroom as exhibits A and B in the contested divorce suit of Lowell Sherman, film director, and Helene Costello, screen star. Helene is the sister of Dolores Costello, wife of John Barrymore. Both girls are former Pittsburghers.

ATTORNEYS PROTEST

Sherman's attorney, W. I. Gilbert protested:

Paul W. Schenck, attorney for Miss Costello declared:

"I'm older than Mr. Gilbert—that let's me out."

Schenck's associate, Milton Cohen, commented:

Clerks, bailiffs and court reporters also pleaded innocence in the court room tragedy of "who stole the books?"

Sherman had brought the books to court in an attempt to prove that Miss Costello read "erotic literature."

DRINKING CHARGED

Intimate glimpses of their unhappy married life were described by Sherman, who declared his wife collected "snappy" books which included besides the two missing today, "A Night in a Moorish Harem," and Frank Harris' "My Life and Loves."

Sherman said Miss Costello drank too much, upset tables, struck him with the cocktail glasses, and once knocked his mother down. He said:

"She called me a ham actor and a fat, old man, and the truth is I just weigh 161 pounds."

Maurice Cohn, Sherman's secretary, described a $3,000 liquor vault "for liquor and other drinks left over from the wedding party," and declared he had one key to the vault and Miss Costello had the other key.

MRS. MILDRED PORTER OLIVER, 29 . . . . SUING FOR DIVORCE

Mrs. Oliver, who today in Judge Rowand's court testified that her husband of almost three years, Donnell Neal Oliver, squandered his entire salary each month in an Oakland gambling house operated by a man named Duffy, that he gave her no allowance.

SEEKS DIVORCE OVER GAMBLING

Her husband, Donnell Neal Oliver, of 7100 Thomas boulevard, squandered his salary each month in an Oakland gambling house operated by a man named Duffy and refused to speak to her for weeks at a time, Mildred Porter Oliver, 29, of Chadwick street, Sewickley, testified in her divorce suit hearing today.

Judge Harry H. Rowand asked:

"What are the initials of this man Duffy?"

Mrs. Oliver answered:

"I don't know. I don't even know where his place was except that it was in Oakland."

Duffy, she testified, often called her by telephone asking her to have her husband make good checks he had given for his gambling debts.

She said when she left him, she went to work as a clerk in a department store.

WELFARE HEADS WARN OF CRISIS

Organized welfare in Allegheny County is facing these conditions:

Exhaustion of funds within three months, necessitating issuance of city bonds and a new welfare drive.

Daily between 200 and 250 new families are asking aid from organized welfare, increasing the demand for funds, instead of showing a normal summer decrease.

The curtailment of expenditures for the destitute, with the possibility of cutting the daily maximum ration from 90 cents, the present allotment, to 60 cents or possibly, to 30 cents. The present rate is $5 a week maximum to a family, and the average is $4.83 in the city and $4.06 in the county—or appropriately 90 cents a day to keep a family alive.

More than 700 men will be dropped next week from the roll of the Allegheny County Emergency Relief Association, and with its funds encumbered, or virtually exhausted, the projects on which the 4,000 men are now

Missing Tech Co-Ed Found In Ohio, Amnesia Victim

Her parents late yesterday received a telegram from her in Youngstown, O. It read:

"I want to come home; send me some money."

Prof. James C. Morehead, a teacher in architecture at Tech, notified Director of Public Safety James M. Clark, who sent Detective Capt. Howard Forner to Youngstown where he found the girl.

Prof. Morehead, the girl's mother and Dr. Homer E. Halferty, the family physician, followed Forner and brought Barbara home.

Mrs. Morehead said this morning that Dr. Halferty declared the girl had been suffering from amnesia and had telegraphed during a lucid moment.

Capt. Forner said Barbara told him:

"I wanted to be alone."

Bolt Hits Home, Woman Stunned

A seven-room brick residence was wrecked and a woman stunned when lightning struck the home of George Dunlap, Perrysville, during an electrical storm which swept the North Boroughs district shortly after noon today.

Mrs. Dunlap, alone in her kitchen when the house was struck, was stunned, but regained consciousness and crawled from under the debris before the arrival of firemen. One hundred and fifty young chickens in a pen in the home were killed.

The roof of the Dunlap home caved in, the home appearing as though wrecked by a gas explosion, according to neighbors who went to Mrs. Dunlap's aid. No fire resulted.

Bell Telephone Company officials reported 15 lines out of order due to the lightning and an electric power transformer of the Duquesne Light Company was put out of commission.

VOTE MACHINE FEES PROBED BY SENATE

Staff Correspondent.

HARRISBURG, May 10.—The Senate voting machine committee, meeting here this afternoon to investigate the compensation and activities of the numerous agents and subagents hired to induce Allegheny County to buy the Electromatic-Poole Engineering Company voting machines, plans future hearings in Pittsburgh, at which time an effort will be made to trace fees paid to H. At the Pittsburgh hearing, books of the Potter Title and Trust Company, which Hirsh used as a depository, will be subpenaed.

AKRON BATTLES STORM ABOVE MOUNTAINS

DALLAS, Tex., May 10.—(AP.)—The giant Navy dirigible Akron battled fog and stormy weather over the treacherous mountain country of Southwest Texas today after riding out a night of rain and electrical disturbances that retarded her flight to the Pacific Coast.

Low-hanging clouds and fog covered the wild, sparsely-settled region studded with desert and mountain peaks, as the world's largest airship fought her way westward, dodging thundershowers.

Officials of the American Airways, which furnished the Akron with weather reports, expressed doubt whether the craft would be able to push over the "Bad Lands" to El Paso today.

DANGEROUS CEILING

Thunderstorms were forecast for most of the day and a dangerously low ceiling was reported eastward from El Paso.

Transmission of weather reports to the dirigible was hindered by static.

The Akron's operator seemed anxious to obtain every bit of data available.

Last night 1,000 residents of San Angelo, Tex., were hastily assembled as an emergency ground crew after Homer Freed, World War veteran, saw signals from the dirigible which he interpreted as meaning it was in distress and needed aid in landing during a severe rainstorm.

DECLINES TO LAND

Commander C. E. Rosendahl, heading the Akron's crew of 80, declined offers of landing facilities from ground stations, however, and the ship weathered the storm.

The Akron's exact position was unknown this afternoon. Reports indicated she was soaring north across the Big Bend country of the Rio Grande.

While the Akron hovered over San Angelo last night, huge hail stones beat down crops and broke glass in hundreds of windows in that nearby area. There was no indication from the Akron that anything untoward had happened to her, however.

Air Romance

AMY JOHNSON

NOTED BRITISH FLIERS TO WED

LONDON, May 10.—(AP.)—An aviation romance will unite in marriage the best-known figures in British flying. J. A. Mollison, noted distance flier, announced last night that he was engaged to Amy Johnson, Britain's most famous woman flier.

Mollisen recently established a new record for a flight from London to Cape Town, South Africa. He once also held the record from England to Australia. He met Miss Johnson two years ago when she completed her 15-day solo flight from London to Port Darwin, Australia.

The announcement last night was a surprise, for last March Mollison announced he was engaged to the 18-year-old Lady Diana Wellesley.

SAYS CHIEF DIDN'T KNOW OF $26,000 PURCHASE

Testimony Seen as Paving Way for Mayor to Take Stand, Perhaps Late Today

By M. V. BURGESS
Staff Correspondent.

BUTLER, Pa., May 10.—The city bought $26,000 worth of canned goods from the L. H. Parke Company, alleged favored bidders, "on quality, not on price," Bertram L. Succop testified in his own defense today against a charge that he failed to award the contract to the lowest bidder.

Succop, discharged as supplies director by Mayor Charles H. Kline, with whom he is on trial charged with malfeasance, declared the Mayor knew nothing of the big canned goods purchase, thus continuing the ground work for the Mayor's expected denial of all charges.

ATTACKS INDICTMENT

Succop, subjected to relentless cross examination yesterday, was recalled again today to tell of the particular purchase from the Parke company that aroused the ire of John D. Houston, wholesale grocer, whose complaint to Council that favoritism existed to out-of-town firms, started the food probe.

Prichard attacked the indictment contending that it had not been shown a contract was entered into with the Parke company.

Special Prosecutor Earl F. Reed retorted that a letter from the Parke company and orders that were filled constituted an informal contract.

Judge Thomas D. Finletter interjected:

"I do not see why in drawing this indictment you did not call this a 'pretended contract.' There was not a formal contract but I will consider it as an informal contract for the time being."

Succop said all bidders, including Houston, the Marcus company and the Parke company, were asked to submit samples to Mayview.

TELLS OF 'BLIND TEST'

Prichard asked:

"How were the samples prepared for the inspection of Mayview by the committee?"

Succop answered:

"There was heavy wrapping

Means Indicted on Lindy $100,000 Swindle Charge

WASHINGTON, May 10.—(INS.)—Gaston B. Means was indicted today for larceny and embezzlement after trust—an outgrowth of his having obtained $100,000 from Mrs. E. B. McLean, wife of the Washington publisher, with which to "ransom the Lindbergh baby."

A District of Columbia grand jury returned the indictment within less than a week after the former Department of Justice agent and former inmate of Atlanta prison had been arrested on the charge.

Since his arrest he has languished in the district jail unable to raise $100,000 bond.

Diligent search by Department of Justice agents has failed to reveal any trace of the $100,000 in old bills which Mrs. McLean turned over to Means upon his representations that has was in contact with the kidnapers. They have searched Means' substantial home in Chevy Chase, and traced his movements to Concord, N. C., and El Paso, Tex.

Means himself sticks to his bizarre story that he turned the money over to a supposed emissary of Mrs. McLean, who gave him the secret mysterious sign of "11" on the Washington-Alexandria road. "No. 11" was Means' secret code for Mrs. McLean.

NORFOLK, Va., May 10.—(AP.)—As the reported final day set for continuing negotiations for the return of the Lindbergh baby ended yesterday, silence concealed the activities of John Hughes Curtis, principal negotiator. It is believed he left the naval base some time since last Friday night by plane, piloted by Lieut. George L. Richard and possibly accompanied by Col. Lindbergh.

"Who did the wrapping?"

"Clydesdale had charge of the samples.

"Clydesdale has testified he put periods for some reason of his own on the labels of the Parke goods. Did you know that?"

"No, sir, and I did not hear him tell any other member of the committee."

"Had you informed the committee of the prices bid?"

"No, sir."

"Was there any difference of opinion among the members of this committee on various samples?"

"There was."

"And what did you do about it?"

DENIES INFLUENCE

"In this examination were you influenced by any friendship for Mr. Cronin?"

"No, sir."

"How long had you known Mr. Cronin then?"

"A little over a year."

"It has been intimated on the stand here by a lady, (Fern Griffith) that you and Cronin were particular friends. Is that so?"

"Well, I hold Mr. Cronin in high regard as a salesman and a gentleman, but it's not true we were close friends."

"It has been testified that Cronin frequented your office. Is that true?"

"He came in a good bit."

"For what purpose?"

"Business. He told me about fluctuations in the market."

Succop then testified that selection of these canned goods—about $26,000 worth—was made on quality, not price. That amounts to the defense of this particular count.

Prichard asked:

"Did the Mayor know anything about this?"

Prichard referred to the canned goods deal. Succop answered:

"No, sir."

ADMITS ADDING ITEMS

That even on the canned goods contract on which bids were taken there were three items added after the bidding and turned over to the Parke Company was admitted by Succop. He said Cronin came to him and told him that orange juice, one of the items, would be very scarce because the "Mediterranean fly was coming over, or something like that," and that the Parke Company also was the only firm that had a large supply of asparagus tips on hand.

Reed in cross-examination of Succop hammered hard on the extra items which were added to the order in ink after the regular bidding occurred. Reed asked:

"Did you know there were three other items nobody bid on?"

Succop answered:

"Yes, sure I did."

He explained that these items were what was known as a "stop order," saying:

"I wanted Parke to hold them until the requisition came through from Dr. Hammers."

CONFIDENCE IN SALESMAN

Succop had said that the order blanks had been handed to him by Jerry Cronin. He declared he had much confidence in Cronin, and that the latter frequently had furnished him with valuable information about crops and canned goods.

Asked by Prichard if the canned goods transaction was ever submitted to the Mayor, Succop said:

"No, sir."

Reed, in cross-examination, asked:

"When you took the covers off the cans at Mayview, you found 33 out of the 35 awards went to the Parke company?"

"That is correct. It showed the quality of the Parke goods."

Succop declared that Floyd, representative of the Controller's office, was present during the entire selection of canned goods at Mayview. Floyd has since died.

REED REPRIMANDED

Reed was reprimanded by Judge Finletter for saying to the jury that the contract speaks for itself.

Reed was trying to defeat Prichard's description of the order for three items on which no bids were received when Reed said, "The document speaks for itself."

Judge Finletter said:

"I dislike that phrase. Sometimes I don't understand what you mean."

The next witness was Mrs. Pearl Clark, Mayview dietician, member of the test committee who verified Succop's testimony as to conduct of the test.

Defense plans were to call various members of the test committee, doubtless to testify that none of them knew of the significant period which Clydesdale admitted placing an Parke goods as an identification mark.

HAMMERS RECALLED

Mrs. Clark and Joseph I. McDonough, chief clerk in the Welfare Department, described how the committee selected the canned goods from the samples assembled at the Mayview warehouse. McDonough said Dr. Hammers and Succop agreed to readvertise certain items, including the asparagus tips and the orange juice which were afterwards added to the Parke contract.

Dr. M. Jutta, of Pittsburgh, testified that Mrs. [illegible] will be unable to be present at the trial because of illness.

Dr. J. S. Hammers, superintendent of Mayview, was recalled.

He was questioned about the "blind test" of the canned goods at Mayview and asked if he had any reason to suspect its fairness. He said he was dumbfounded when he heard its fairness had been called into question.

CHANGES TESTIMONY

Budget Director R. J. Alderdice, a former councilman, who late yesterday overturned tables of the defense by testifying he had seen "beautiful rugs" in the Mayor's office several months before the costly rugs which the Mayor is charged with buying without bids, were obtained, changed his dates this morning.

Instead of having seen the handsome rugs last September, Alderdice said the date was the following January. The prosecution said little to him in the cross-examination except to inquire placidly if he was now sure of the date.

Councilman Harry A. Little was asked the meaning of the notation "OK CHK" on the resolution for the purchase of the Packard automobile. He said:

"As I understood it from the City Clerk, 'OK CHK' only meant the resolution was for presentation to City Council. It really meant nothing to us at all."

Councilman W. Y. English, recalled, testified the initials were simply to show Council that the Mayor had knowledge of what was in the resolution.

President of Council John S. Herron and Councilman English yesterday testified they told the Mayor to put new rugs in his office because the old ones "looked shabby."

PRAISE FOR RUGS

Herron said he went to see the new rugs and admired them. He said he told the Mayor:

"This rug is going to be here a great many years after all of us are gone."

So enthusiastic was English that he startled the court by attempting to read a general statement from the witness box.

Judge Thomas D. Finletter interrupted, saying:

"We must observe the regular rules."

English in his testimony said there was never any question raised about the Mayor's rugs until months later, when "the whoopee was started about the city manager bill."

MELLON COURT ATTIRE SECRET

LONDON, May 10.—(AP)—Whether Ambassador Andrew W. Mellon will or will not wear knee breeches at the first royal court at Buckingham Palace tomorrow night when a number of American women will be presented to King George and Queen Mary, was a question embassy officials could not answer today.

Presentation of the first group of American women will be made by Senhora Regis de Oliviera, wife of the Brazilian ambassador. Mme. Fleuriau, wife of the French ambassador, was to have made the presentations, but because of the assassination of President Paul Doumer, of France, she will not do so.

Chief among the American presentees is Mrs. David K. Bruce, daughter of Ambassador Mellon, who has chosen a beautiful gown of white georgette with an overdress of lace, lightly embroidered with rhinestones and silver, and a lace train to match. Instead of a bouquet, Mrs. Bruce will carry a white leather fan.

JOBLESS STORM NEW ZEALAND PARLIAMENT

Protest Over Relief Cut; Demonstrators Smash Windows and Loot Shops

International News Service

WELLINGTON, N. Z., May 10.—Heavy property damage was caused today when a mob of unemployed, angered over their inability to gain an audience with government officials regarding reduction in unemployment relief, staged a riotous demonstration in the streets of the city.

With their ranks augmented by thousands of curious spectators, the rioters marched through the streets breaking and looting shop windows, hurling ash cans and overturning automobiles. Order was restored when police, aided by reserve forces, arrested 24 ringleaders.

The outbreak was almost identical to the riots staged in Auckland several weeks ago and not entirely quelled for three days.

The rioting followed ugly scenes outside the parliament buildings, where the mob demanded their leaders be admitted to interview cabinet ministers and protest against recent cuts in the unemployment relief fund.

Police eventually persuaded the crowd to disperse whereupon the demonstrators marched to the center of the city. With their ranks swollen by discontented factory workers, the mob rapidly got out of control.

As the riotous crowd swarmed through the streets, shopkeepers hastily barricaded their stores, but scores of windows and their contents fell prey to the demonstrators.

working, in alternate shifts, will be completed by July 1.

An increase of destitute families to 55,000 by next December is foreseen.

There has been no increase in employment—the latest available estimates indicating more than 190,000 are idle.

BUDGET CUT URGED

In preparation for the fall campaign for funds from private resources, as opposed to public, R. Templeton Smith, president of the Welfare Fund, announced today that he asked executives of the family and other welfare associations to trim their operating budgets for next year at least 10 per cent. He said:

"Four family agencies, members of the Welfare Fund, are carrying the bulk of the unemployment relief load. If the present volume continues (and there is every indication it will do so) and the burden of providing the distribution service remains with the family agencies, the fund will be faced with the necessity of spending $500,000 more than the amount raised in the campaign last fall.

"With such a situation confronting us, we feel that any additional funds made available should include the cost of distribution as well as the relief itself."

PLEDGES OVERDUE

Explaining that $300,000 in pledges are overdue, he said:

"We believe the Welfare Fund, in its campaign next fall, should present the lowest possible budget."

He then asked that operating expenses be cut to a minimum.

The last available figures on unemployment, estimated by the Pittsburgh Business Review, were set at 188,898.

The payroll for Allegheny County, based by the same review, on over 430 business houses and manufactories, was estimated less than 45 per cent of the 1929 payroll.

Much of the welfare, swinging from private to public funds, has already cut into promised money.

Relief work through city improvement is virtually at a standstill, according to the Emergency Association, while the 3,500 men at work on county projects and roads are gradually being dropped.

Over $425,000 of the funds from the Talbott bill, on which the city and county have already drawn $600,000, were used to pay for needs previously met. Approximately $500,000 from the Family-Help-Family plan is available, still, for feeding and clothing the destitute.

NEW APPEALS

The city reported last week 46 new families on the list and the county 674.

Increased demands, an official of the Federation of Social Agencies stated, will be met with reduced food orders in the event adequate funds make it possible. He said:

A chart, prepared by the Bureau of Business Research, University of Pittsburgh, in conjunction with statisticians of the social agencies, showed that the family relief demands for December, 1929, were 3,500; for December, 1930, over 12,000; for December, 1931, over 30,000, with the likelihood that by next December, welfare would have to keep alive or materially aid 55,000 families.

Relicense Theater Showing Halted Play

NEW YORK, May 10.—(AP)—The License Department issued a renewal of the license of the Avon Theater yesterday, just a week after the opening of the political satire, "Merry-Go-Round," was halted there.

The play, which satirizes the city government, was stopped on the ground that renewal of the theater's license had not been sought until after the time limit.

Wife Prevents Gas Death of Idle Man

Julius Jansen, 48, of 3215 Parkview avenue, was in Homeopathic Hospital today as the result of an attempt to end his life by inhaling gas from the kitchen stove in his home last night, according to police report. Jansen, found unconscious on the floor by his wife, was said to have been brooding over ill health and unemployment.

Dail to Debate Tax On Dancing, Scotch

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, May 10.—(AP)—When the Free State budget is introduced in the Dail tomorrow it will include proposals for a series of new taxes on dancing, Scotch whisky, smoking materials and perhaps all outdoor sports.

LEBRUN NAMED PRESIDENT OF FRANCE

Poincare's Protege Takes Post of Doumer, Slain by Russian; Slight Opposition

VERSAILLES, France, May 10.—(AP.)—Albert Francios Lebrun, protege of Raymond Poincare, was elected fourteenth president of France today by a vote of 633 out of 747 cast to succeed the assassinated president, Paul Doumer.

Paul Faure, noted Socialist leader, received 114 votes and 49 were blank. In the interest of harmony there was virtually no opposition to the veteran statesman whose service as president of the Senate had put him in line for the presidency of the nation.

VISITS DOUMER BIER

After the brief ceremony of investiture, M. Lebrun's first act was to start for Elysee Palace to pay his respects at the bier of his slain predecessor.

Although there was a great spirit of harmony when the Senate and the expiring Chamber of Deputies assembled here to elect M. Doumer's successor, there also was considerable nervousness.

This was manifested in wholly baseless reports to the effect that Senator Joseph Paul-Boncour and Jean Chiappe, prefect of the Paris police, were dead—M. Paul-Boncour through assassination and the police prefect through suicide.

RUMORS DENIED

Police officials promptly issued a denial of the report about M. Chiappe and Senator Paul-Boncour established the fact that he was unharmed by appearing on the tribune at the joint meeting of the Senate and Chamber.

Before the voting, Lebrun's choice appeared certain because Paul Painleve, his strongest competitor, withdrew his candidacy last night and the Radical party, which would have voted for Painleve, swung to Lebrun.

During the balloting there was considerable excitement in the corridors outside. Maurice Violette, a deputy, slapepd the face of former Deputy Paul Bourgot and Senator Victor Boret struck Deputy M. Sevestre, a one-legged war veteran.

VOTE MACHINE FEES SIFTED

ceived. It will also be designed to discover what the actual cost of manufacture was to the Poole Engineering Company, to which the voting machine contract was let, and how much of the approximate $1,100,000, which Allegheny County paid for its voting machines, went to high-pressure men.

So far it has been disclosed that Hirsh himself, C. G. Brown, former Congressman John M. Morin, R. F. Holmes and Charles Pearson, all of Pittsburgh, participated in the fee-splitting, or were supposed to, though there are intimations that some did not get their money. In addition, there were legal fees to have been paid to O. K. Eaton, Pittsburgh attorney, for representing the Poole Company in the numerous legal tangles encountered in the deal.

TRACE HIRSH STEPS

An effort also is to be made today to determine the steps Hirsh took in securing the contract for machines for his Electromatic Company, and on what basis the Poole Company was drawn into the situation. Hirsh, accordng to report, was confident of securing the contract before organizing the Electromatic Vote Machine Corporation, which was never anything more than a paper corporation, and which, in effect, sub-let the contract to the Poole firm, of Baltimore.

C. G. Brown, secretary and treasurer of the Electromatic, is a former Pittsburgh druggist, with whom Hirsh has had friendly relations extending over some years. Originally Hirsh's brother, F. J. Hirsh, held one of the offices turned over to Brown, whose name is reported not to have appeared in the original incorporation papers.

HARRIS ARRIVES

The Senate committee also is interested in the manner in which Holmes, connected with a Pittsburgh manufacturing corporation, was drawn into the situation. It will attempt to discover what plans Hirsh has made for the future manufacture of machines, for which he has sales jurisdiction, now that the Poole company is in the hands of a receiver and apparently out of the vote machine manufacturing business.

Senators Frank J. Harris, chairman of the committee, and Joseph G. Armstrong, Jr., one of the inquisitors, reached Harrisburg last night from Philadelphia, where they had attended the funeral of the late Senator Augustus F. Daix. Harris was in conference this morning with Attorney Alexander P. Lindsay, representing the citizens' voting machine committee, closely co-operating with Harris.

Trade Mark Suit Withdrawn Here

An equity suit filed last August in Federal Court by the Electrolux, Inc., of New York, against the Allegheny Forging Company, of Pittsburgh, and individuals trading as the Pittsburgh Manufacturing Company, was dismissed on motion of counsel for the plaintiff concern.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 10.—Strawberries are ripe in California and the cherry trees are red with luscious fruit.

All the orchards are in beautiful condition, and from reports of the farmers in the grain bearing counties the wheat and the barley and the oats act so far as if nobody had whispered a word about hard times.

How is it in the East, and in the Middle West, I wonder?

And what difference will it make how much hay and grain and how many cattle and what broods of chickens are raised—if nobody can earn money enough to buy a rib or two of roast beef, or a good old fat rooster for a Sunday dinner?

UNEQUAL SHARES

There's just as much to eat in this great country of ours as there ever was, but somehow some of the right people don't seem to be getting their honest share of it.

Good honest men and women who are eager to work and can't find a thing to do, and little big-eyed, wan-faced children wondering why they are hungry all the time and mother and dad can't seem to do a thing about it.

Now that's a nice state of affairs for a great, rich, prosperous country, isn't it?

Isn't it just about time that you and I, and the rest of the friends and neighbors stopped acting like a lot of red Indians—sitting on the ground with their blankets over their heads, holding what they called a lodge of sorrow?

Have the bootleggers and the hijackers, and the speakeasies turned us all into a lot of hysterical nobodies without the courage or the fortitude of a band of slinking coyotes.

I don't believe it—I'm not going to believe it.

BREWERY WORK

There's prohibition. You and I know that if we would throw open the wineries and take the padlock off the breweries, we'd set a million to work within 24 hours and within a week's time money would begin to change hands again—and the government would have millions of taxation money jingling in the coffers that are so empty now.

Let's put an amendment into the prohibition amendment, let's stop this horror of speakeasies on every corner, and bootleggers in every block.

Write to your Congressman and tell him you expect him to do his part in stopping this hideous farce of prohibition.

And how about the unemployment bond issue—Congressman Welch, of California, is trying to put that matter to vote—are you with him or against him?

What's your own congressman going to do about it?

It sounds very mysterious, and "Financial" doesn't it, that bond issue, but it just means that millions of men will go to work building roads and bridges and public buildings and a million little homes will be saved.

Congress will be adjourning in a few weeks, let's see to it, you and I, that our own particular congressman does what we want him to do in this emergency.

The Making of An American
JOHN N. GARNER

By ELSIE ROBINSON

BEHIND every man—a woman. Know that woman, and you will discover the making and the inner meaning of the man. In her you will find the reason for the thing he is, or the answer to the thing he wants. In either case, she is the expression of the man's secret nature—that nature with which you must ultimately deal.

Down in the little town of Detroit, Tex., lives an old woman who is the reason for John Nance Garner. She is his mother, Sarah Jane Garner. Eighty years ago she was born, when Oklahoma was Indian Territory and they called it "The Nation."

Sarah Garner's story is the story of her country. The same things that shaped her character, shaped the people whom her son now serves as Speaker of the House. From that same untilled wilderness soil, from those pioneer privations and aspirations, has come the soul of America.

Quaintly she refers to her boy as "My son John." More than mother love speaks in that phrase. Like calls to like. America speaks to America, in a simple, sturdy language that, God forgive us, some of us have almost forgotten.

John Nance Garner may mean much to his country. But his mother, all such mothers, will always mean more. They made America possible.

CHAPTER TWO
"MY SON JOHN"

A little old lady rests in a rocking chair. Leaf shadows splatter the porch floor—young leaves, bursting into another spring.

Like a bright, eager tide swirling about her chair comes the sound and sense of today—a puppy's excited yipe; sharp smell of spaded earth; sunshine spangling drying sheets, blowing in clouds above the greening lawns; thick, warm fragrance of lilacs.

Down street, a motorcycle roars.

Smiling, old Sarah Jane Garner nods and rocks.

Her shrunken body rests, leaf light, in her chair. A man could span her tired shoulders with one hand. Her thin, gnarled fingers gently beat to some old tune.

As through a dream, her dimming eyes look out—

Beyond the busy town—
Across the years—

Nearer, clearer than the fragrance of lilacs, she smells the biting yellow dust of the long trail—

Sees canvas tops lurch white against a hot, blue sky; loom silver, again darkness studded thick with stars; silver, blotched deep with orange from the evening fires.

Rocking, old Sarah scans that other scene, and feels, still gnawing, that young gypsy urge, and with it a girl's heartache, as the home ties break. Youth! Youth, in 1852!

Thinks she's doing something, doesn't she, the young gadabout! What can she know about doing things, sitting so safe and soft in expensive machines, stepping on gas her dad pays for? What can she know about the cost of things, and the risks girls took in 1852?

Real risks, then. Risks that still warm your blood in the remembering, and spunk up your pride, even though you are 80 and resting in your rocking chair, with your work all done.

Work? It was never done, in those days. Danger? You were never rid of it.

A girl growing to womanhood in the 50's; womanhood, wifehood, motherhood—that meant something, then. Meant plenty!

"Woman's right—is that what they call it now?" The old mouth twitches into a grin. Well, maybe they'd be surprised, these young ones, if they knew what rights women had then! Equal rights to share all the dangers and hardships with a man. Rights to break the same bronco, skin the same bob cat.

FOUR PCT. BEER BILL OFFERED IN SENATE

Bingham Submits Amendment To Revenue Measure to Eliminate Nuisance Taxes

WASHINGTON, May 10.—(AP.)—The 4 per cent beer bill was offered in the Senate today by Senator Bingham (Rep.), of Connecticut, as an amendment to the revenue measure, assuring a roll call on this issue.

Bingham proposed legalization of 4 per cent beer as a substitute for numerous "nuisance" levies in the tax bill, estimating the revenue from the alcoholic beverage would net the government $375,000,000 annually.

He would substitute the beer tax for the admissions, communications and radio and phonograph levies, saying the beer provision also would make unnecessary the increase in postal rates, and in automobiles and in income taxes beyond the rates fixed by the House.

The Connecticut Senator explained that a tax of 6 per cent on beer already is on the statute books. Therefore, his amendment simply provided that the Volstead act be amended by striking out the words "one-half of 1 per centum" and inserting "4 per centum." In an accompanying statement, Bingham said:

"This not only eliminates the worst of the nuisance taxes, but will immediately restore work to hundreds of thousands of unemployed and provide a new market for grain, coal, transportation and numerous other articles for which there is now no demand."

U. S. Envoy Recommends Swedish Liquor Plan

WASHINGTON, May 10.—(INS.)—A new amendment to the Constitution returning to those states that desire it control of liquor within their borders and adoption of the Bratt (Swedish) system were recommended to the Senate today by John M. Morehead, United States Minister to Sweden.

Confessing himself a life-long dry who has been disappointed at the train of evils that have grown up in the wake of prohibition, Morehead declared his belief that in Sweden they have worked out the "only system of control that really works." He highly recommended it to the Blaine sub-committee of the Senate Judiciary Committee, before which he testified.

The Bratt system permits unlimited sale of beers and light wines through state-controlled commissions, but limits the sale of hard liquor to a maximum of four litres (approximately a gallon) a month to heads of families or otherwise qualified adults.

FALL AT RANCH, A FREE MAN

The aged former Secretary of the Interior was sped here from the New Mexico State Penitentiary at Santa Fe and arrived at dusk last night in the same ambulance that took him there last July 20 to serve a year and a day sentence on conviction of accepting a bribe while in office.

Tres Rios ranch was Fall's prized possession. It is now owned by E. L. Doheny, oil man and lifelong friend, who obtained it by foreclosure, but has instructed that Fall still regard it as his home. It was conviction of accepting a bribe from Doheny, in connection with the leasing of naval oil reserves, that Fall was sentenced. Doheny was acquitted of charges of bribing the Secretary.

MRS. MASSIE HAPPY ON WAY TO AMERICA

Makes First Appearance in Public on Ship, Plays Game, Attends Movie

By JAMES ADAM
International News Service.

ABOARD THE S. S. MALOLO, En Route to San Francisco from Honolulu, May 10.—Mrs. Thalia Massie emerged from the retirement of her cabin today for the first time since she boarded the Malolo at Honolulu.

Pale but with spirits becoming more buoyant hourly as the distance between her and Hawaii grew greater, Mrs. Massie, at the suggestion of her husband, Lieut. Thomas H. Massie, ate in the ship's dining room.

It was the first time she was seen in public aboard the Malolo since she got aboard Sunday behind the interference of Naval officers who "locked out" three policemen who attempted to serve her with subpenas to appear as star witness at the retrial of four of the five halfcastes accused of attacking her.

The fifth accused half-caste was Joseph Kahahawai, for whose honor slaying Mrs. Massie's husband, Lieut. Massie, and her mother, Mrs. Grace Hubbard Fortescue and two naval enlisted men were convicted of manslaughter and given commuted sentences of one hour because of overwhelming sentiment in their favor.

Following her first appearance in the ship's dining room, Mrs. Massie took a brisk turn about the deck with her husband and mother. She occupied a steamer chair for a short while and then played a game of shuffle board. Later Mrs. Massie attended the ship's motion picture show before returning to her cabin.

Massie Sailing Snags Attack Case Trial

HONOLULU, May 10.—(AP.)—How Public Prosecutor John C. Kelley, lacking the complaining witness in the case, would proceed May 25 with the scheduled retrial of four men accused of attacking Mrs. Thalia Massie, provided a subject for public speculation today.

The prosecutor said he understood Honolulu police had been successful in their effort to serve Mrs. Massie with a subpena for the attack just before she sailed Sunday. This contradicted statements of Clarence Darrow, attorney and adviser of Mrs. Massie, who had said the subpena had not been served.

Kelley said if Mrs. Massie did not appear in court the morning of May 25 he would request a warrant for her arrest. The prosecutor acknowledged the warrant would have no legal force on the mainland.

Hawaii Lacks Proof Of Confession Story

HONOLULU, May 10.—(AP.)—Prosecutor John C. Massie had confessed to a group which last December abducted and beat him.

TRIPLE TIE IN RESERVE TWP. COMMITTEE

Three Women Have Same Vote; Shift Made in 8th Ward Due to Count Error

A triple tie for ward executive committeewomen features the latest figures of the return board in its count of the vote cast in the recent primary. Mrs. C. Schab, Margaret Gigler and Mildred Bought figure in the latest tie which is in the Second Ward of Reserve Township.

A change in the vote for ward executive committeewoman in the Third District of the Eighth Ward was announced today by the board, giving the election to August Seible instead of Andrew J. Hutzenthaler, Sr., as previously reported. Seible received 201 votes to Hutzenthaler's 91. The error was caused by a mistake on return sheets from the district.

Another change in the vote for ward executive committeewoman in the Second District of the Twenty-first Ward was announced, giving the election to Lillie Campbell with 323 votes instead of to Margaret R. Collins with 214 votes, as previously reported. The error was caused by wrong figures being called to the return board.

The following is an additional list of winners. The first named is executive committeeman and the second named is executive committeewoman.

CLUBS JOINING BLUE SHIRTS

Liberty clubs in 25 western and southern states today were being changed into units of the Father Cox's Blue Shirt Army as a result of the recent merger of the Liberty party and the Jobless party. W. H. (Coin) Harvey, leader of the Liberty party, has written club officers urging that the clubs become units of the Blue Shirt Army.

Units have been organized in Minnesota, Missouri, Mississippi, Montana, Nebraska, North and South Dakota, New York, New Jersey, Oklahoma, Oregon, Ohio, Texas, Tennessee, Washington and Wisconsin. The units also are increasing in Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Virginia.

The requirements of a Blue Shirt member are that he or she must be a citizen of the United States, must take the oath of allegiance to America and must be in sympathy with the platform outlined in the resolution of the Jobless, presented by Father James R. Cox, of Old St. Patrick's Church, to President Hoover last January.

Stadtfeld Charge Expected to Drop

Justice of the Peace Ralph N. Parkhill, of Aspinwall, said yesterday he doubted if a summons would be issued to R. M. Stadtfeld, son of Judge Joseph Stadtfeld, requesting his appearance for a hearing on charges of parking without lights. Contending that he was arrested without reason, the younger Stadtfeld planned to file suit for false arrest if a summons was issued. Stadtfeld was arrested Saturday night in Sharpsburg.

FLIER INDICTED FOR MURDER

MIAMI, Fla., May 10.—(AP.)—Capt. W. N. Lancaster, former British army aviator, has been indicted for first-degree murder in the strange shooting of Haden Clarke, fiance of his flying partner, Mrs. Jessie Keith-Miller, Australian aviatrix.

The true bill against Lancaster was returned by the Dade County grand jury yesterday, a week after his arrest on a murder warrant, and Judge H. F. Atkinson ordered the flier held without bail for trial at Circuit Court term opening today.

Clarke, 26-year-old author, was fatally shot with a pistol owned by Lancaster April 21. He and Mrs. Keith-Miller, whose life story he was writing for publication, and at whose home he lived, became engaged while Lancaster, formerly her fiance and for five years her flying partner, was in St. Louis on business.

No Whiners
Frontier Mothers Faced Many Hardships

Frontier wives and mothers in the 50's. They earned their titles, then. No place on the Texas plains for whiners, snivelers or [illegible]mentalists. No time to wonder if you were "expressing yourself" when you had to do the expressing for a tired, hard-pressed man, and for a pack of youngsters coming along as regular as the sweet potato crop.

Lively youngsters, stuck out ears scooping up every hint of mischief, freckled nose sticking into every speck of dust.

Young Jack, for example. There was a character. Tough little tike. Always he'd raising. Eating hard. Playing hard. Fighting hard. Working—well, maybe not so hard. But what boy ever did? Particularly the kind of a boy that gets himself elected to be captain of the Blossom Coon Soup Hollow baseball team.

Those Blossom Coon Soup Hollow baseball fights! A chuckle comes out of the old rocking chair. But it wasn't always a chuckling matter then, when young John showed up with his shirt all and a pants leg almost missing. Shirts and pants didn't grow on bushes then. Everything came hard. Clothes, food, housing, schooling, doctoring, life itself—everything came slow, and hard, and high.

Everything you had, everything you were, you worked for, sweated for, near died for, many a time. And sometimes, straightening up to ease your aching back, you wondered for a minute or so how it would all end.

How it would all end—

Magic Voice
Wilderness Perils Help Form Character

Across the sheen and laughter there comes a sound that she alone can hear—the voice of a man in Washington, a sturdy, red-faced man whom the world calls "Mr. Speaker"—a blunt, direct voice.

Old Sarah Jane Garner, sitting there in Texas in the land which she helped make, knows what lies behind it. Wilderness trails. Wilderness perils. Days when a man bought his citizenship literally, with blood and tears and sweat and prayers. Camp fires. Skulking savages. A baby's grave on a wind swept prairie. Corn pone, 'lasses and turnip greens. A barefoot boy with a toothless grin, and a bloody nose, and a dream forming inside his hard, tousled head.

How it would all end—

They're calling him "Mr. Speaker" today. Will they be calling him "Mr. President" tomorrow?

The years drift slowly by. Light and shadow, joy and sorrow; life and death. A babe turns in her arms. A youngster stands by her knee. A man strides from her, out into the world.

A man? No; still her baby.

MRS. JOHN N. GARNER, SR., PICTURED IN HER TEXAS HOME

"My son, John," she whispers, softly. Then, again, as though she called: "My son John!"

Will they call him "Mr. President" tomorrow?

And if they do, will he hear their cheers, their bravos—

Or will he be listening, across the miles, to another voice, hear her whispering:

"MY SON JOHN"

RADIO MURDER TRIAL THRILLS

Mrs. Grogan Points Out Miss Ware As Slayer

Throngs who have been listening to the radio drama over station WCAE "The Trial of Vivienne Ware," last night heard the most thrilling of the five sessions, when Mrs. Emmaline Grogan, mother of Dolores Devine, dancer, identified Miss Ware as the woman who killed Damon Fenwicke.

No less dramatic was the sequence, when the defense attorney by cross-examination insinuated that not Miss Ware but Miss Devine was the actual killer.

The trial concludes tomorrow night at 8 o'clock over WCAE.

The session of the fictionized murder trial opened last night with Mike Spelluci, owner of a night club, as the first witness. He was forced to admit that his cousin, bearing a striking resemblance, was at the trial the first night when the lights dimmed and a knife sailed through the air dangerously close to Miss Devine.

Mrs. Grogan then took the stand. She testified she went to Fenwicke's house the night of the murder, was about to enter when a car pulled up. She moved to a dark part of the porch and watched a woman with a black cloak, light dress and drooping hat go in. A shot was fired, and the same woman came out again, re-entered the car and drove away. She positively saw the woman, she said, identifying her as Miss Ware.

The mystery revolver was identified by Officer McShane as one found in the cab of Joseph Gilk, who took the stand. He said, on cross-questioning, that he drove a woman to Fenwicke's house the night of the murder. She had left the pistol in the car, a .38 caliber automatic. The woman, he said, got into the cab near the Silver Bowl night club—from which previously Dolores Devine testified she had walked. The motion picture form of the drama will be seen at the Stanley Theater.

Patricia Pitt

Patricia Pitt's Sprightly Comment on Pittsburgh's Society Events

Gaily colored crepes, feminine chiffons and lace evening gowns with brief jackets of crepe and velvet in vivid colorings, against a background of the conventional black and white of men's clothes, gave a definitely springtime aspect to the large audience at the Alvin last night to see rollicking "Hay Fever," the last of the Professional Players' series.

In White And Black

Among the well known people present in the audience was Betty Buchanan, daughter of the Henry Clay Buchanans. She wore a demure frock of shell-pink net trimmed with rows of ruffles of the net, and a very brief jacket of pink taffeta worn in cadet style.

Mrs. John E. Walton was in black and white chiffon with a brief jacket of black velvet bordered with fur. Grey Buckley was in blue crepe and Lu Salle Dorrance in dark brown lace with touches of green crepe for accent.

Wears Crepe

Louise Reed wore black lace, Mrs. R. Kelly Hatfield, red crepe printed in black and white, and Mrs. Lewis A. Parke, delphinium blue crepe. Mrs. W. L. Jones, Jr., chose a frock of dark blue crepe having a sash of orange velvet.

Others I saw were Mrs. George B. Love in hyacinth blue and white printed crepe made with a shallow cape; Mrs. B. F. Jones III, in black chiffon; Frances Forsyth in pale blue with the border having bands of blue beading; Mrs. Joseph M. Scribner, in blue lace; Mrs. Alex Robinson, Jr., in black chiffon and lace; Mrs. John W. Lawrence in black satin.

* * *

Mrs. A. C. Martin, of Morewood avenue, who will leave soon for the Martin summer place in Greensburg, wore white crepe. Accompanying her was her mother, Mrs. Robert T. Morrow, who with Mr. Morrow is just back from Palm Beach.

Mrs. Herbert A. May was another first nighter and so were Mrs. Raymond Hilliard, Mrs. J. Henry O'Neill in buttercup yellow chiffon with the brief sleeves banded in brown; Mrs. William S. Moorhead in black and white chiffon; Mrs. C. A. Painter in hyacinth blue and white printed chiffon.

Caroline Mitchell, one of the buds of the past winter, was in white satin and her mother, Mrs. Harry Mitchell, was in sapphire blue lace. Mrs. Henry Clay Bushman wore a white crepe gown with a cape jacket of the same material.

Deb in Poppy Red

Others I noted in the large audience were Mrs. A. P. Brill in a black and white costume; Mrs. William Penn Snyder, Jr., in yellow chiffon and lace; Miss Madeleine McClintock in orange crepe; Mrs. Harold Williams in blue chiffon and lace.

Mrs. Roy A. Hunt was in seafoam green chiffon; Mrs. Frederick G. Gwinner, III, in black lace with a lipstick red velvet jacket; Mrs. Tom Robinson in black.

Virginia Frew Wright, the David L. McCahills and Mrs. H. W. Wittmer, III, were also in the audience.

The Colloquium Club will have a miscellaneous program next year. This was decided yesterday at the meeting held in Mrs. John Irwin's home, Darlington road. The club also voted to dispense with the customary closing luncheon this season, and, in its place, to make a gala occasion of the final meeting, May 23, at the home of Mrs. Kenneth Seaver in Oakmont.

Varied Program

Yesterday's program consisted of two papers, one by Mrs. S. F. Marks on "Old Churches of Western Pennsylvania" and the other on "Old Homes" by Mrs. Robert O. Fulton, and readings from Godcharles' "Daily Stories of Pennsylvania," by Mrs. H. F. Wherrett.

Mrs. Marks said services had been conducted west of the Alleghenies as early as 1749 and that all Pittsburgh's early ministers were Princeton graduates. Until 1790 there were no church buildings but no architects were needed for the first primitive buildings that were hewn out of logs. As soon as churches were established schools were organized, for education followed the Bible, she remarked.

Western Pennsylvania has little historical background in the way of domestic architecture, for shelter and food were the main concerns of its settlers, Mrs. Fulton stated, as she went on to comment on some of the old homes, the Wilkins homestead, Christopher Gist's home, the home of Gen. St. Clair, the Schenley mansion, the Stephen Foster home and the birthplace of Henry Clay Frick, which his daughter, Miss Helen Frick, has furnished entirely in period and presented to the Historical Society.

Our Old Homes

Colloquium's officers for next year will be Mrs. W. P. Barker, president; Mrs. E. C. Chalfant, vice president; Mrs. Dougald Lyon, corresponding secretary; Mrs. A. A. Reed, recording secretary; Mrs. Clara B. McComas, treasurer. By increasing its dues, the club has doubled its scholarship fund at Pennsylvania College for Women and now contributes $400 annually.

Rare Art Works Exhibited at Mt. Lebanon

An exquisite banquet cloth that had been the gift of an Indian prince, a mandarin coat taken from the Imperial palace during the Boxer rebellion, a 125-year-old Quaker costume of exceedingly fine handwork, handsome quilts, many of them more than 100 years old, some early coppers and some rare Egyptian articles as well as many other fascinating things were included in the arts and crafts exhibit staged by the Mt. Lebanon Woman's Club yesterday.

Mrs. J. B. Nicklas, Jr., retiring president, made her farewell address and welcomed into office Mrs. C. F. Goldthwaite, her successor. The only program feature was a monologue by Mrs. Robert Kunz.

* * *

The May meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of Central Christian Church will be held in the home of Mrs. E. G. Hess Bartlett, street, on Thursday. The Squirrel Hill division has charge of the program, which will include a paper on Japan by Mrs. C. E. Uffner.

-:- Club Notes -:-

Despite the fact that its fund was deposited in a bank that had closed its doors, the Homewood Women's Club raised its full scholarship pledge of $300 to the University of Pittsburgh this season. Indeed, the year which was closed yesterday was a particularly successful one from both financial and philanthropic standpoints. Needlework Guild, altruistic and work for the blind committees all reported exceptional activities, the last named having delivered 556 pounds of carpet rags to the blind. The nominating committee's entire ticket was elected with one exception. Mrs. Harry Charles, who was nominated from the floor as recording secretary, Mrs. R. H. M. MacKenzie is the new president.

MERCHANT HERE FAVORS SALES TAX PLAN

Waldheim, Banker, Store Head, Expects National Trade Upturn in Fall

As a merchant and banker, Aaron Waldheim, St. Louis civic leader and head of May Stern & Company expressed himself in favor of a sales tax to obtain revenue to run the government, upon his arrival in Pittsburgh yesterday.

Waldheim feels confident an improvement in general business will start in August or September, following the harvesting of the crops and when things become settled in Washington, and industry knows where it stands.

FAVORS SALES TAX

Waldheim said:

"I favor the sales tax because it is an equitable tax and just to all. As for general business conditions, we should see improvement within a few months. It ought to come in the fall, after the farmer has harvested his crops, for which he should receive a fair price. When he receives a fair price that will settle the whole thing."

Waldheim believes the depression has made family ties closer than ever before. He added:

"The foundation of our nation is the family influence. Families have been brought closer together than ever before, because of the conditions which have confronted the American people. This will unquestionably reflect itself in the furniture business, for the people are home loving.

"The people realize their responsibilities to the home. The depression, more than anything else, has brought the home closer together."

LONG PARTNERSHIP

Waldheim came to Pittsburgh from Cincinnati following a conference of executives of the estate of David May, who died March 24 last. Mr. May was one of the founders of the business which he and Waldheim, life long friends, started together without a partnership agreement and which concern is now a national institution. Mr. May had looked forward to observing the fiftieth anniversary of the founding of May-Stern and Company brought into being 48 years ago.

NEW EVENING WRAP FEATURES SMOCKING

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, May 10.—The wrap in the sketch is a handsome affair of black velvet, chosen from Lucien LeLong's collection. Like most of the new evening wraps, it has no trimming save a large buckle of brilliants at the center front and some smocking to widen the shoulders. The skirt portion closes the full length from waist to hem under the left arm, while the bodice opens by pulling the left sleeve off the shoulders, like a scarf.

TOWN OFFERS CONSIDERED BY COX

'Father of Needy' Expects To Choose Location of Farm City This Week

Father Cox devoted nearly all of his afternoon yesterday talking to real estate dealers and farm owners who have suitable locations for his new farming community to be known as "Coxtown," and before the end of the week he thinks that he will be in a position to announce the location.

It was the original purpose of Father Cox to buy the land outright for this purpose but, in the meantime, suggestions have come to him in the way of loans of the acres he proposes to employ on loans which will give him the option to ultimately buy the ground.

Father Cox

Father Cox believes that this "back to the farm" is the only solution for a problem that is getting more serious every day. The farm may not assure clothing, but it does provide food. In a recent visit abroad he found the depression just as serious as it is in America, but many in these foreign countries do not suffer for the want of food because they work the soil and get ample subsistance from their efforts.

Father Cox admitted yesterday that every day it is getting harder and harder to obtain money for his activities. The demands for his help grow from day to day and he is worried about the near future. He needs funds and he needs funds badly.

DRIVE PROGRESSES

In the meantime the Father Cox-Sun-Telegraph Home Delivery Drive by which this friend to the needy will get a liberal commission for every new order for the delivery of the Sun-Telegraph, is going along with gratifying results.

The funds thus secured will help to feed from 2,500 to 3,000 unfortunates in his daily breadline at Old St. Patrick's and will also help to furnish baskets of food for hundreds of Pittsburgh families in distress.

If you wish to help Father Cox send in your order either to Father Cox or to the Sun-Telegraph, to have this paper delivered to your home by carrier. A subscription blank will be found in this issue.

TELL IT TO SALLY -:- -:- Follow This Unusual Feature Day by Day -:- -:- By SALLY MARTIN

Wives, Like Husbands, Get Tired of Daily Grind

Should husbands help with the home chores?

"Discontented" thought they should. According to her, taking care of a couple of lively youngsters and keeping the house all spick and span, too, all by herself, was too much. And because she had to do it, she was beginning to think that her marriage was a washout.

Missus M. M. disagreed with her.

"I raised seven" said she, "and I never expected my husband to fuss with anything at home, after his day's work was done. I didn't think that would be fair. I kept things neat and shining, too.

It was a great letter she wrote, full of cheerfulness and courage and love. Marriage hadn't been a washout for her. It had been busy, but it had been fine and satisfying, too.

SEEMS LIKE IMPOSITION

Hilda had a few words to say about it. I wonder if you'll agree with her.

"Dear Sally —

"Hurrah for Mrs. M. M.! What a fine letter she wrote, and what a fine capable woman she must be. Frankly, I agree with her that a man should not be expected to work all day making a living and then be expected to come home and help around the house.

"I have seen lots of women who saw nothing wrong about having a man do the dishes after he came home, but it seems to me like imposing on him.

"These women who think two or three children are such a task—what is wrong with them? I think it is not the amount of work they do but the way they do it.

"Of course I can see the point of view of the young woman who signed herself 'Discontented' too. She is a young wife, with not much experience and probably no training for wifehood. She is tired and needs a change and Dad could help occasionally. At least he shouldn't snap at her and criticize her. He should realize what her problem is, and try to be decently good-natured until she gets it worked out.

EXPECTS TOO MUCH

"I don't think he should be expected as a matter of course, to help her every day, but he should be able to see how and when she is actually fagged out.

"Children are just as hard to work on as figures or any other sort of a task. Figures at least, stay put. So I can sympathize with her. But I think they should both realize that dishes, and maybe a little disorder, aren't worth wrecking marriage over.

I think her husband is selfish, inconsiderate and intolerant, and that he expects too much of her. He should try to understand her difficulties. She is probably doing the best she can.

But to get back to Mrs. M. M. She is a capable woman, but she can never tell me that she really ever did all her own work. I am the youngest in a family of nine, and I know a capable woman with that many children has them trained to help her in countless ways. That's why things run so smoothly.

I admire her, but I do think she ought to have more sympathy for the younger, less experienced generation. Toleration is needed from both her and the husband of 'Discontented.' Frankly, I don't seem to care much for that man. He's doubtless done some blundering himself. He should realize that some things have to be learned and that what is easy for some is hard for others.

IMPROVE SYSTEM

"To 'Discontented' herself, I would say—try to learn to organize your work. Learn short cuts. Go to some older wife who has lived through what you're living through now, and get her to help you with her knowledge and experience. And then tell your husband that he'll have to have a little patience, that you have a right to it. Make him give you a vacation for a short time.

"But don't feel sorry for yourself. You wouldn't feel sorry for yourself if you had a hard job in some office. You'd dig in to lick it. You can do the same where you are. Marriage is a job too. I know. I'm married myself, and I have three lively sprites to keep me busy, so I know something about it.

"HILDA"

Atta girl, Hilda! There's a lot of sound sense in what you say. Here's hoping all the "Discontenteds" will make use of it.

Any time that anyone comes to you with any kind of a proposition that looks as if you are going to gain a great deal for a very little—beware!

Pay little attention to their references to like propositions which proved exceedingly profitable. Such are the outstanding exceptions.

Think rather of the countless swindles that have been successfully perpetrated through the confidence inspired by reference to these few exceptions.

Remember that spoken promises mean nothing, and never sign any agreement without having it thoroughly read by one who can penetrate its probable loopholes.

Rich men never invest in anything without a thorough investigation.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Know About Your Liver! You Can't Live Without It!

What do you know about your liver? You should know about it, because the liver is one of the most important organs. It is located in the right side of the body just beneath the diaphragm and extends slightly to the left of the midline of the abdomen.

Dr. Copeland

The liver is important in the maintenance of good health. We cannot live without it. It neutralizes and removes toxins or poisons from the blood. All material which enters the blood from the stomach and intestines must pass through the liver before it can reach the general circulation.

The digestion of sugar in the body is influenced by the liver, which removes any excess of sugar from the blood and stores it in the form of glycogen, and when the body needs sugar, the glycogen is again changed into sugar and released into the blood stream.

In addition the liver secretes bile which aids in intestinal digestion and the absorption of fats. It is believed that this organ aids also in the making of red blood corpuscles and "fibrinogen," an important blood element.

Fortunately the liver is a large organ and like other organs in the body is protected by "factors of safety." These factors enable vital organs to carry on a large amount of their work even when they are diseased. Hence, while it is true that we cannot live without the liver, when a considerable portion of the liver is damaged, the remaining liver cells do the necessary work. This is seen in cases of tumors of the liver, abscesses of the liver and inflammations of the liver due to certain diseases.

Nature also has endowed the liver with great recuperative powers and this is of value in combating certain disease.

Gallstones and inflammation of the gall bladder are intimately related with the liver, because of the closeness of the gall bladder to the liver.

Though tremendous work has revealed our present knowledge, there still remain many unsolved mysteries concerning the liver. Unfortunately many diseases of the liver are still incurable, but it is to be hoped that as our knowledge increases we will be able to cure them all.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Permanent wave processes have been so improved that the hard-boiled curling seldom causes the royal topcrest to break or go dry. But, to be on the safe side, it's a good idea to give the hair a month's conditioning treatment before the fiesta. Twice a week, at night, rub mineral oil into the scalp and over the hair shafts. Next morning remove it by means of a vigorous sudsy scrubbing, with sufficient rinsings to carry away every bit of soap.

When a gal starts out to bead her eyelashes she is carrying the makeup game a bit too far. Beading is suitable only for stage makeup. Lashes can be darkened by the application of mascara, dark brown being a more friendly color than black. Dip the eyelash brush in water, brush over the mascara compact, apply lightly while the pretty winkers are resting on the first finger. Mascara is better than cravon, which all too often makes a smudge.

Initialing Silver

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I know it is "fitting and proper" to have my initial engraved on any silver given to me before my marriage, but I don't want the silver to be mine. I want it to be "ours." Is it very incorrect to have the man's initials put on it? I don't care so much about my own initials on the linens, but I do resent the silver. H.

Since you feel so definitely about this, by all means have your silver engraved with the initials of your name-to-be. The world of brides-to-be is divided on this question, and now many of them use the initials of the married name. It is entirely a matter of choice, a matter of whether you wish to abide by the convention of the old days, or use the more "modern" form. Conservative brides choose the former; less conventional ones choose the latter. But don't worry about being criticized, for you won't be.

I'm a bit concerned with your words "the man's initials." These are not used. It is the initials of your informal married name. Say Mary Smith marries John Brown. Then the silver would be marked, if you use the married initials, with M. S. B.

Groom's Privilege

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I have a brother who has become engaged to my girl friend. It is her desire that I act as maid of honor at the wedding. My girl friend has two married brothers and I have also another brother who is eligible, and there are several very intimate friends to choose from. Will you kindly advise which of these persons should be asked first? M. E. S.

Dear girl, you should not—nor should I—be given the high privilege of deciding whom your brother should choose as his best man. The groom should do his own deciding about this exceedingly important matter, and he should do his own inviting. Usually the groom chooses his own brother for this honor.

Street Car Manners

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Very often, when entering a street car, I find no vacant seats, and someone in a partly occupied seat is kind enough to share his or her seat with me. After the car has made a few stops, there are any number of vacant seats. Is it proper to exchange your seat for one of these, or does it show poor taste in leaving the seat of one who has been good enough to share his or hers with you? A. S.

I realize how you feel about this...one always feels a social awkwardness and self-consciousness when one makes this change, as if one weren't sufficiently grateful to the passenger who has made it possible for us to have a seat. But on the other hand it does seem foolish not to make the change and thereby make everyone comfortable.

OFFICIAL SYSTEM As Adopted by Leading Authorities

By E. V. SHEPARD

Choice Between Trump and No-Trump

When partners' hands fit, ordinarily the suit will win one or more trick than the no-trump. That means that an ordinary hand can score four-odd at a major suit or three-odd at no-trumps with about equal certainty, provided the no-trump has no very weak suit and provided the suit make finds no bad trump distribution. Either a major suit declaration or no-trumps with well-distributed strength will go game about four times as often as a minor suit can win five-odd. Minor suits suggest no-trumps more strongly than do major suits.

Each period in the game favors some fad. At present undue emphasis is given distribution. Some players go so far as to never bid a suit when they hold a 4-3-3-3 distribution among the four suits provided, of course, that strength is held in at least three suits.

♠K J 7 5 ♡9 4 2 ♢A 6 ♣A Q 9
♠A 10 4 ♡A 7 5 ♢K 5 3 ♣K 6
♠A K 8 ♡9 6 3 ♢K 9 4 4 ♣A 8 2

The tendency to faddism creeps in when the first hand shown below is bid 1-Diamond, solely because there is a 4-4-3-2 distribution, and the second hand is bid 1-No Trump only because the distribution is 4-3-3-3. Personally I prefer the suit declaration on both hands.

♠A 7 ♡K J 5 ♢5 3 2 ♣A Q 10 7
♠A 7 2 ♡K J 5 ♢8 5 3 ♣A Q 10 7

When there is no great choice between no-trump and a suit make, you may show your number of guarded suits as follows: first bid no-trump to show four guarded suits. In case your partner bids 2-No Trumps you next show your suit, allowing him to choose between the two makes. First bid your suit to show that only three suits are guarded; in case your partner raises your bid to two, shift to 2-No Trumps to disclose a very weak suit—especially a four-card suit. Following these lines of procedure the first hand shown below may be bid 1-No Trump, to show its four guarded suits; in case partner bids 2-No Trumps, allow him to choose between the two makes by shifting to 3-Hearts. Bid 1-Spade on the second hand. If partner raises you to 2-Spades shift to 2-No Trumps to announce that your suit consists of only four cards.

♠A K 6 ♡Q 10 4 3 ♢Q 10 8 ♣K 5
♠A K 10 5 ♡J 9 4 ♢K 8 6 ♣A J 9

The next hands contain the same honors as the two hands given above, but the first hand below calls for an opening bid of 1-Heart and a rebid over partner's shift to no-trump. The second hand below should first be bid hearts and then shifted to 2-Spades in case your partner bids no-trump over your opening make. No-Trumps should be the last resort in both instances.

♠Q 10 8 ♡A Q 9 4 3 ♢K 5 ♣K 5
♠A K 10 5 ♡10 8 2 ♢A 7 ♣A K 5

One group of players never makes an opening bid of no-trump when they hold a biddable suit, even if all four suits are guarded. This is purely conventional. Another group bid 4-3-3-3 distributions a suit, only if the suit consists of A-K-Q-X, so that an assist must show four trumps. If A-K-J-X is held an assist might be made upon Q-X-X. Any radical idea should be explained to partner.

Household Hints

If one part of beef drippings to three parts of lard is used for a frying mixture sodden food will be avoided.

A small wooden box containing a card index of recipes is just about the best thing ever to have in the kitchen. All the "company" dishes are within and when one is at a loss as to what to have to eat the card index is full of suggestions on the subject.

Never allow silk and wool garments to become very soiled before laundering. They will last much longer if washed before they are very dirty.

When purchasing kohl-rabi secure the tops also, if possible, and freshen them in cold water. Peel, cube and boil the globes, and boil the tops rapidly in unsalted water, drain and chop finely. Mix together with cream sauce and seasoning.

'BELIEVE IT OR NOTS' POURING IN

Readers Send Many Of 'Rips' Best Features

It's a most amazing world! That's the only conclusion to be drawn from the mass of incredible, proven facts that have flooded the Sun-Telegraph since it was announced that The National "Believe It or Not" Contest was being conducted to find the greatest amazer in America.

The magnificent array of grand prizes listed in an adjoining column—which Robert L. Ripley has arranged to reward the nine who submit the most astounding items, have spurred hundreds to new feats of astonishment.

SENT BY READERS

As you know, the subjects of many of the best of Ripley's drawings come to him from readers of the newspapers publishing his feature. Here are some of them, ones that made good "Believe-It-or-Nots," good enough to be published, good enough to win in this contest.

A housewife sent in the paradox that every housewife knows, "Heavy cream is lighter than skimmed milk." Another one sent in, "Oil and water will mix—just add soap." Another one sent in the question and answered it herself, "Where do flies go in the winter?" The answer is, "No fly is known to live through the winter."

CHANCE TO WIN

Those are the best believe-it-or-nots because they come within the experience and interest of everybody. There are more of them to be had, you probably know some. Send them in. You may win your choice of the grand prizes.

All you have to do is to write your "Believe It or Not" legibly on one side of the paper, add proof, and mail it to the "Believe It or Not Editor" of the Sun-Telegraph.

The Prizes

Curtiss-Wright airplane with course of instruction at flying school.

Contest Rules

1. You may submit as many "Believe It or Nots" as you wish. You do not have to submit any drawings or sketches. Write legibly on one side of the paper. Have your name and address on each sheet of paper if you send in more than one. Each entry must contain the explanation or proof of its truth. The Sun-Telegraph will not be responsible for the return of entries.

2. Contributions will be judged daily for the local prizes. No contribution will be considered which is mailed after midnight, May 16.

3. The contestant agrees to accept the judgment of the Sun-Telegraph in the awarding of the daily prizes. Only contributions winning daily prizes will be forwarded to Mr. Ripley to compete for the grand prize. The contestant agrees to accept Mr. Ripley's judgment on the grand prize winners as final. Nine grand prize winners will be named in the order of the merit of his or her contribution. The first prize winner will have first choice of the nine grand prizes; the second prize winner will have his choice of the remaining eight prizes, and so on, until the grand prizes are all taken.

4. In case of ties the same prizes will be awarded to all tying contestants.

5. You do not have to buy the Sun-Telegraph to compete in this contest. Files of the Sun-Telegraph may be found at the public library or at the office of the Sun-Telegraph, where the drawings of Mr. Ripley and the instructions of the contest may be consulted.

GIRL IN DURKIN TRIANGLE DIES

CHICAGO, May 10 —(AP)— Betty Werner—who lived up to the old adage about the fury of a woman scorned—is dead.

Records of Oak Forest Infirmary revealed today that she died April 24 of tuberculosis under her true name, Elizabeth Andrews, and no one recognized her as the girl who six years ago helped send Marty Durkin to prison.

Durkin risked his life to visit her while police under orders to shoot to kill were hunting him for robbery and murder. She risked her life to shield him from bullets when he walked into a police trap. Then Durkin jilted her to marry another. Betty turned to vengeance. Her testimony at his trial was largely responsible for his conviction of killing a federal agent.

Neither Durkin nor Clyde Whalen, who she married shortly after the gates of Joliet prison clanged shut on Durkin, visited or communicated with her during her last illness.

Things That Bore Me, Too!

(So do you, no doubt, complain.)

That Milton Ager and Jack Yellen, who wrote the song-success "I'm Feathering My Nest for a Little Blue Bird," for Sophie Tucker's screamie of years ago called up a newspaper reference room recently to ask: "What kind of a bird is a blue bird?" I expect to have Herbert Hoover call and gamble now to ask me who is President.

That every time you send a card or 2nd-class mail during 1931 it costs you a cent and a half additional? And how about every time you bought a quart of rye?

That contrary to popular belief snakes do not have the power to charm birds. But those on Broadway charm everything.

That you cannot taste sugar if you touch it to the tip of your tongue. The same is true of a red-hot coal, but don't try it!

That the twentieth century did not begin at the end of 1899 but on Jan. 1, 1901. What a swell barroom argument that is.

That in 1794 the French cavalry captured the Dutch navy. (And I can prove it.)

That two Presidents of the United States were arrested for traffic violations—Franklin Pierce in 1853 for reckless horseback riding and U. S. Grant for speeding in a buggy.

That the glow-worm is female and uses its lustrous powers to attract its mate. (So don't make a fool of yourself chasing glow-worms.)

That the grape-fruit is so called because it grows in clusters and not because it is akin to the grape.

That the word thug is derived from the name of a caste of professional murderers who terrorized India for several hundred years. They worshipped Kali Ma (the Hindu goddess of destruction) and with them assassination was a religious duty.

That Solon gave the best reason against war when he said that "it causes the sons to die before their fathers."

That chewing gum was first used by the Aztec Indians and became popular in Spain when the Conquistadors returned.

That only one person in 10,000 over the age of 40 has perfect eyesight. And only 40 in 10,000 know it.

That tarring and feathering was the invention of Richard Coeur-de-Lion for the punishment of mutineers on his Crusades to the Holy Land. (It seems that the only things ever invented by a king were forms of torture.)

That the male gorilla usually sleeps at the foot of a tree to guard his family against the leopard, which is the only beast he fears.

That until a ¾ century ago, the wheels of railway passenger cars were constructed with a paper core, and that they were abandoned because they did not, as was expected, deaden the sound of their motion. (The next step forward, however, should be something in cellophane.)

That kissing as a form of greeting and affection is comparatively recent, and that Japanese and Chinese never practice it.

That the tuxedo dinner jacket derives its name from the old Tuxedo Club at Tuxedo Park, N. Y., and that the word is Algonquin Indian meaning "he has a round foot."

That an artist who works on a free lance basis is known as a sore-legger, which comes from the fact that he walks from office to office to sell his work. (You supply your own puns on this one.)

That the poison-swallowing court stunt in "The Mouthpiece," the screamie, was actually done by Ambrose Purdy.

That bloomers get their name from Mrs. Amelia Jenks Bloomer, editor of The Lily, who in 1851 advocated the trouserette as a reform attire for women.

That booze comes from an English corruption of the Turkish buzek. (The stuff I've been drinking isn't old enough to come from such a distance.)

That the latest statistics show the flu epidemic of 1917-1919 took a toll of 30,000,000 persons, more than five times as many as the casualties of the World War.

There Is Fun in 'Hay Fever' As Constance Collier Shows in Alvin

By GEORGE SEIBEL

You have seen those large and gayly colored balloons they sell on circus day—big bubbles filled with air and covered with such amusing clowns and intrepid acrobats. A comedy by Noel Coward is just like one of those balloons. In the first act his characters blow up the balloon. In the second act they chase it all around the stage with infinite alacrity and zeal. In the third act they touch it with a lighted cigaret—and it explodes with a delightful bang. That's all there is to "Hay Fever," which was inflated, kept afloat with graceful banter and at last detonated with a hilarious fizz and puff.

It would be difficult to assign any good reason even for the title of the play at the Alvin. There is one character, indeed, who has an attack of what seems like hay fever in the third act, but there is another character who is similarly afflicted with what is undeniably hiccups. Why not call the comedy "Hiccups"? And there is another character who is weeping through all three of the acts—why not call it "Sniffles"? These questions must be referred to Noel Coward, who is the author.

Mr. Seibel

As for Constance Collier, who is the star, and who personifies the artistic temperament in a particularly exalted form, there is no reason why the play should not be entitled "Theatrics" in her honor, for she is the central figure, the dominant person in the plot, and the one whose work keeps the balloon afloat to the last.

PLOT IS AN ANECDOTE

When one speaks of the plot it must be remembered that this plot is little more than an expanded anecdote. The family of Judith Bliss, once a great actress has become a little group of actors in their domestic circle. She is the tragedy queen and they all play parts around her. When every member of this family invites a week-end guest of the opposite sex, and then proceeds to have a flirtation with the guest invited by some other member, the air is charged with hysterics and histrionics, until the four unhappy victims of this hospitality are glad to escape while the family is enjoying a happy home quarrel.

That's all there is to this comedy—a conversational farce of the most tenuous texture with dialogue excruciatingly amusing, which sometimes becomes so fantastically unreal that you agree with the visitor who asks if they are "all mad."

There is one great stroke of realism—when the novelist who is married to the actress and has been vamped by one of the visiting ladies into kissing her, is surprised by his wife, who has just vamped one of the men into kissing her, and calmly asks the momentous question:

"Are there any chocolates in the house?"

IT IS ADMIRABLY PLAYED

Such is the play, and it is admirably played. Deft dexterity in keeping the balloon afloat with Noel Coward's verbal fans keeps the audience continually in a titter and giggle, which occasionally rise to a gale of mirth. Constance Collier is the tragic queen in comic caricature—and no one else could do this role justice more magnificently. Eric Cowley as the novelist wears his monocle with cynical superiority that is superb. Louise Beaudet (the first Ophelia I ever saw) does the role of the dresser as if she had stepped out of Dickens. Julia Hoyt as the matter-of-fact vamp is admirable, while Terence Neill and Edward Cooper extract all the humorous possibilities that dwell in hiccups or a cold in the head.

Then there is Valerie Cossart, the delicious dryad of the weeping willow, who deserves a critical Chautauqua salute with a queen's lace handkerchief. Betty Linley and Anthony Kemble-Cooper as a juvenilish pair of sophisticated adolescents complete the cast, all but the dog, who also merits a critical biscuit.

Beautifully played and beautifully mounted, this trifle light as air shows what a master of conversational technique can make out of a temperament, a cold in the head, a fit of hiccups and a damp hanky.

On Trial

Screen Bills Change

Several program changes will take place on screens tomorrow. Warner Baxter is "The Amateur Daddy" in a photoplay of that title coming Wednesday to the Fulton. Marian Nixon is a member of the orphaned family of which he becomes the head.

"So Big," with Barbara Stanwyck, will be the Enright screen feature, beginning tomorrow, and "The Mouthpiece," with Warren William, will open there Friday.

Because "Tarzan The Apeman" is attracting large audiences it will be continued in the Sheridan Square a full week. The new bill, "Girl Crazy," will open Saturday.

"Sky Bride," romantic air comedy with Richard Arlen, Jack Oakie, Virginia Bruce and Robert Coogan, opens a week's engagement in the Warner Friday.

Can a play-girl settle down to one man? is answered in "Dancers in the Dark" with Miriam Hopkins and Jack Oakie, coming to the Davis Theater Friday.

Jimmy "Schnozzle" Durante, who was seen recently in person in the Penn, will come to its screen Friday in a featured role in "The Wet Parade," film version of Upton Sinclair's novel. Walter Huston and Dorothy Jordan head the cast.

"The Trial of Vivienne Ware," with Joan Bennett, Skeets Gallagher, Don Cook and Zasu Pitts, comes to the Stanley screen Friday. On the stage will be "Let It Rain."

BITS OF LIFE

All In A Day

By Mark Hellinger

The Sucker

I smiled.

"Frank," I returned, "you know not to whom you are speaking. I like stories of all types and varieties. I don't care whether they concern horses, dogs, speakeasies, theaters, men or women. What makes you ask such a foolish question?"

"I have something you might be able to use," he asserted.

"Some time back, on one of the Eastern tracks, there was a race coming off that held the attention of the entire racing public. There were three horses entered in the event, but only two of them mattered. The third was a dub.

"The two important nags were, to give them names of some kind, Bouncer and Happiness. Both had gone through six or seven races without a defeat, and you couldn't pick up a sporting page without finding some sort of discussion about the relative merits of the two horses.

"Now, at last, Bouncer and Happiness were to meet. The excitement among the players was tremendous and, for 10 days before the race you heard little else. The sporting columnists went to the thing with a vengeance; half of them insisting that Bouncer would walk in and the other half saying that Happiness would leave the other horse several blocks in the rear.

"The rank outsider in the race was a dog named Chauncey, and you may be certain that he was totally disregarded.

"In front of the clubhouse stood Franklin, a combination bookmaker and commission man. A commission man is a bird who acts as agent for players who want to get large bets down but who do not wish to make them personally. He gets, of course, a percentage of the winnings.

"Well, just before the first race of the afternoon Franklin was just about the happiest man on the track. He had fallen into something that happens only once in a long, long time. A very wealthy gentleman had called him to bet $20,000 on Bouncer at the best possible odds. Franklin had accepted the commission.

"As he walked to the lawn again he was called aside by another player who went in for very big bets.

"'Franklin,' said the second man, 'I'm going the limit on Happiness this afternoon. I'm spreading the bets around and I want you to handle one for me. Place $20,000 on Happiness for me at the best possible odds.'

"The commission man nodded and said that he would report back immediately. He walked away with a song in his heart—and for a good reason.

"The price on both horses was 9 to 10. That was all you could get on Bouncer; it was all you could get on Happiness. And Franklin was certain that, in a race such as this, the odds would never shift.

"Accordingly, his position was a honey. He would simply hold both bets himself. No matter which horse won, he would receive a commission of some $2,000. He needed no personal investment because he would simply turn the loser's $20,000 over to the winner. And if, by some modern miracle, the outside horse should win, Franklin would be ahead exactly $40,000.

"Chauncey, the third horse, was 100 to 1, and you could have had 1,000 to 1 if you were really interested. Franklin had notified both players that their bets had been placed at 9 to 10 and he was whistling merrily just before the start of the big race when a sucker came over.

"'Mr. Franklin,' said the sucker, 'I hear that the odds on Chauncey are 100 to 1. I would like to bet $100 on him at that price. Will you take it?'

"Franklin rubbed his hands.

"'Make out your slip,' was his reply. 'You have $10,000 against $10. Good luck to you.'

"Well, Mark, you guessed the answer before. Chauncey won that race in the mud, and the winning caused a terrific sensation at the time. Franklin had to pay $10,000 to the lucky mug who had bet on Chauncey, but you can imagine that he was quite glad to do it. Having held the two big bets, he was ahead $30,000 on the day.

"But here's the kick. The first player slipped in his bathtub that very night, and died the next day from a broken neck. The second player evidently went away overboard on Happiness, for he skipped town directly after the race. He hasn't been seen to this day.

"Tough for Franklin, wasn't it? The race on which he won $40,000 was the race that actually cost him $10,000. He had to pay, but he never collected a nickel."

"That's a good story, Frank," I observed. "Just one question I'd like to ask. What happened to the man who won the $10,000 on the 100-to-1 shot?"

The racing man sniffed.

"Who knows?" he muttered contemptuously. "Who cares what happened to a sucker like that?"

Dorothy Jordan is seen in "The Wet Parade," opening Friday in the Penn.

Fulton Film to Remain Seven Days

The Fulton, which last week advanced its opening day from Thursday to Wednesday, will continue the new day of opening this week and then return to Thursday openings next week. Consequently, "Amateur Daddy," starring Warner Baxter, which opens tomorrow, will run for seven days before making way for Edmund Lowe and Claudette Colbert in "The Misleading Lady."

Again a Prince Wins Bride He Wants

By MILDRED FILLMORE

Cut after the approved pattern of such film romances, "Ein Prinz verliebt sich" ("A Prince Falls in Love") came to the Avenue Cinema yesterday, with scenes of stiff formality at court, of unrestrained hilarity behind the curtain of the opera, and a heroine hiding under the bed of the prince who is to marry her, but doesn't know with whom he is falling in love.

It is the old story of the girl reared in a convent school, who is dressed primly by her prudish mamma, so that the prince considers her an ugly duckling. She hears he is in love with an opera singer, and she visits the opera singer's dressing room to learn her secret of charming men. The obliging diva transforms her costume by tearing away neck and sleeves, and the prince, who does not recognize her, falls in love, as he should and invariably does.

There is the usual comic valet and bonehead chauffeur, a few tunes of the Viennese brand, bevies of well-fed chorus girls, sparkling champagne poured into waiting glasses, and the only departures from routine are afforded by the sequence of pictures in the dressmaker's booths and the episode of the hero dragging the heroine from beneath his bed by her shapely understanding. The heroine is Lien Deyers, the diva is Trude Berliner, and the prince is George Alexander. Altogether it is a well-done version of the thing they have done so often.

The short pictures are again very much worth while—a thrilling tiger hunt in the jungle and a series of scenes from the Holy Land with a commentary that nearly turns into a sermon.

F. S. HARMON, 'Y' WORKER, HERE

The youth of foreign countries today is showing concern in the international relations of their respective nations and the whole question of racial relations according to Francis S. Harmon, general secretary of the international committee of the Y. M. C. A. having supervision over 30 countries. He is here for conferences with the local board of directors and committee heads.

While the youth is schooled in international problems as part of its regular education, Mr. Harmon declared, the Y. M. C. POLITICS

Reed Must Take Stand On Prohibition

—By MARK SHIELDS—

HARRISBURG, May 10.—Senator David A. Reed, whose attitude toward the troublesome question of prohibition has not recently been clarified, will have to take a stand on this subject at the Republican national convention if he succeeds in his desire to be named as the Pennsylvania member of the Resolutions Committee, which will prepare the platform.

Mr. Shields

Recommendation for this place will be made Saturday in Philadelphia when the Republican delegates caucus to pick their officers and members of the various committees.

William S. Vare wishes to be chairman of the delegation, and his friends advance in his behalf the influence the Philadelphia organization now wields in state politics. They claim it would be a compliment to Vare to which he is entitled, and recite the history of the 1928 convention when Vare, though A. W. Mellon was recognized as leader, upset the Mellon group by suddenly and dramatically declaring for Hoover, thus swinging the Pennsylvania vote at a time when there was much opposition to the then Secretary of Commerce.

It is possible Vare's health will not permit much energetic action, but the duties of a chairman are not necessarily heavy, and the detail could be attended to by someone else.

Should Vare not be the chairman, the next in line is Jay Cook, Philadelphia banker and Republican national committeeman from Pennsylvania. Cook, however, is not in good health, which would mean that he would step aside in favor of State Chairman Edward Martin. The latter would be more acceptable to the Mellon group than Vare, though recently Martin and the Philadelphia organization have been in close harmony on political questions.

* * *

Hoover Watching Trend Closely

Reed, if a member of the Resolutions Committee, probably will be under binding instructions to insist upon a plank for complete repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment and modification of the Volstead act. The delegation, under the dominance of the Allegheny and Philadelphia delegates, is certain to declare itself unequivocally on the dry issue, using the heavy wet vote for Senator James J. Davis as a mandate on the issue.

This will be done, whatever the attitude of President Hoover. Mr. Hoover is remaining silent on the question while members of his cabinet put up trial balloons for relaxation of existing laws. He is, however, watching the trend closely.

It is apparent that national administration leaders learned of the determination of Register of Wills Joseph N. Mackrell to introduce at the delegate caucus Saturday a resolution pledging the Pennsylvanians to vote for a repeal plank. Leading party officials have been asked to delay any action at this time, though tentative assurances have been given that the platform will be satisfactory to them.

Mackrell intends to present his proposition Saturday. If present plans of state leaders are not altered, the matter will be tabled, to be revived when the delegates get together in Chicago just prior to the convention. It is evident the national administration does not at this time wish too drastic action from the leading Republican state, fearing a possible bad effect on the organized dry groups which until now have stood with the President.

If it became evident this early that the Republican platform would be soaking wet, these drys well might transfer their efforts to the Democratic party and endeavor to secure better treatment from the minority, though that seems a far-fetched hope.

G. O. P. Ward Chairmen To Be Elected This Week

Republican ward chairmen will be elected in Pittsburgh this week. In a majority of the wards there will be little or no contest, and the candidates approved by the Kline-Coyne organization will get the posts. In a few wards, however, there are real battles, and the atmosphere is tense. Substantial threats are made against the power of the organization to elect its choices.

Merely as a suggestion, it might be an excellent idea for the city administration to abandon its past tactics of using the police force in some wards to enforce the election of its candidate. It will be recalled that in the last election in the Fifth Ward, administration opponents were subdued by the police, the result being two ward meetings and two gentlemen calling themselves the only real ward chairman.

However, the one in the favor with the administration was recognized, and secured the patronage and perquisites for his followers. When it is necessary to call the police in to erect a party government there is something wrong.

Democratic State Chairman John Collins and National Committeeman Sedgwick Kisler are claiming 75 of 113 votes toward re-election when the Democrats meet May 19. Warren Van Dyke, Harrisburg, and Joseph F. Guffey, Pittsburgh, are seeking the posts now held by Collins and Kistler, and are especially confident of a majority.

The fight is a continuation of the Smith-Roosevelt presidential contest, in which the Guffey-Van Dyke combination defeated their opponents in the delegate-at-large fight, though losing many district delegates. As is customary among Democrats, the strife will be bitter.

SURVEY SHOWS GOVERNMENT COST BOOST

Price of City Rule in 1930 $57.95 Per Capita; Only $25.38 at Start of War

WASHINGTON, May 10.—The mounting cost of government in Pittsburgh, which resulted in a peak per capita cost in 1930 of $57.95, was shown today in a survey made by the Department of Commerce through the Bureau of Census. This was a per capita increase of $4.18 over 1929. At the start of the World War it cost only $25.38 per capita to operate the city.

Total expenditures for operation and maintenance of the general departments amounted to $38,887,000. This, with other expenditures for operation, maintenance of public service enterprises, permanent improvements, schools and county organizations brought the total to $72,068,128. Total payments for the county amounted to $22,778,093.

Total receipts were $57,584,336 or $85.82 per capita. The excess of expenditures over receipts was borrowed.

Property taxes represented 80.8 per cent of the total revenue while in 1917 it represented 73.2 per cent. The increase in the amount of property taxes collected was 171.2 per cent from 1917. The assessed valuation of property in the city was $1,164,-6 ,760. The levy for all purposes was $47,541,329, of which $22,640,103 was levied for city purposes, $11,216,427 for the county and $13,684,799 for schools.

The total funded debt at the end of 1930 was $153,859,393. In 1929 the per capita net debt was $193.95 and in 1917, $95.08.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., May 10.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

That fellow Massie and his wife had a tougher time getting out of Honolulu than they did while there. I didn't read about anybody trying to stop Darrow, but I bet at that he made a lot of friends over there. I have known Darrow a good many years, and always go to see him in Chicago. I knew William Jennings Bryan many years. Both men lived ahead of their times, Bryan in government and Darrow by believing that the under dog in any fight had his side, and I bet they both had great admiration for each other. Yours,

WILL.

The Lunch These Girls Are Eating Cost Just 33 Cents for the Five

THE FIVE CARNEGIE TECH CO-EDS WHO HAVE AGREED TO LIVE ON A DOLLAR A DAY . . . . . TO WORK OUT AN INEXPENSIVE, HEALTHFUL MENU

Tech Girls Pluck Greens For Dandelion Item On Economy Menu

The five Carnegie Tech girls who are living on a 20-cent "economy" diet as an experiment in the department of household economics, are not above saving a penny here and there by picking a portion of their food supply from the field.

Today's dinner menu includes wilted dandelion greens, so the girls went dandelion picking yesterday.

At the end of their first day of eating on an allotment of $1 for all five, Frances Graham, Laila Ikola, Marion Black, Elinor Kutchka and Mabelle Steele agreed that they had "had lots to eat" and were confident their dietary study would aid families of moderate means in obtaining attractive and economical meals.

Before undertaking the experiment, the girls agreed to forego candy and "snacks" between meals. At the close of the two weeks' study, they will compare their weights with the figures recorded just before their first "economy" breakfast Monday morning.

One advantage the "economy" meals have over "prosperity" meals, as pointed out by one of the students, is that there aren't so many dishes to be washed.

Today's menu follows:

BREAKFAST

LUNCH

DINNER

FIGHT BUS LINE IN DORMONT

Two applications for transportation permits—one for passengers and the other for freight and express—were taken under advisement by the Public Service Commission here today. Hearings were held by Examiner William E. Best.

The application of the Pittsburgh Motor Coach Company for carrying passengers through Dormont and Mt. Lebanon to South Park was opposed by Dormont, and an application of Louis M. Hubert, of Pittsburgh, for a permit to carry freight and express between this city and Sharon was contested by the Pennsylvania Railroad and the Railways Express Agency.

Federal Fugitive Held for Orders

James Suidiani, 30, arrested by city detectives and turned over to special agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigations as a fugitive of justice is in the hands of the United States marshal, pending court order from Wheeling, W. Va. Suidiani was indicted in the Federal District Court of Wheeling last year on a charge of transporting a girl from Pittsburgh to that city.

VOTE DECISION APPEALED

Attorney Edward O. Spotts, representing A. P. Davidson, a candidate for the Legislature from the Thirteenth District, today filed an appeal against the decision of County Commissioners W. D. Mansfield and C. M. Barr, supervising the Return Board's tabulation of the April 26 election, in which they refused to throw out votes of the First District of Springdale as illegal.

The recount in the district gave Davidson, an Independent, 10 votes and his "Regular" opponent, W. L. Brown, 182, the same as the unofficial report. Brown and Davidson are waging a close fight for the second of the two Republican legislative nominations in the Thirteenth District, with William A. Walker, Davidson's running mate, assured of the first.

On May 6, Spotts filed a petition contesting Brown's nomination. He alleged that many of the ballots were placed in the box in the First Springdale district with the stubs and numbers still attached and therefore were illegal.

Judge Harry H. Rowand at that time set May 23 for a hearing of the appeal and, as only about 60 votes separate Brown and Davidson in their grand totals on present tabulations, ordered that certification of nomination in the district be withheld until after the hearing.

Central High School Class Reunion Set

More than 100 of the 224 members of the Central High School class of 1912 are expected to attend a reunion dinner in Webster Hall, May 21. Dr. Ben G. Graham, superintendent of schools, will speak. Dr. Graham, a member of the Central faculty, was chosen as the guardian of the 1912 class.

Church Fights Plan to Open Dog and Cat Hospital In Nearby Building

Objection to the use of the building at 5432 Center avenue as a dog and cat hospital has been filed with the Zoning Board by the First Evangelical Church, Center avenue and South Graham street, and a hearing has been set for Monday at 9:30 a. m.

The Bureau of Building Inspection issued a permit to L. M. and S. Bannett, owners of the structure, granting permission to make alterations to suit the purposes of Dr. Samuel Glenn, owner of the hospital. The complainants must show such use of the property is prohibited.

The church has placed the legal questions in the hands of Attorney Charles S. Smith, who represents the board of trustees of the church, and efforts, it is reported, will be made to prove that a dog and cat hospital is not in reality a hospital.

However, Dr. Glenn says that the section is a commercial zone. Dr. Glenn's present hospital is at 117 South Negley avenue. Dr. Glenn said:

"I heard it is desired to have the permit revoked for making alterations to the building. While some may be objecting, others are in favor of it. We are engaged in a humanitarian cause."

BURIED 2 DAYS, CHILD SAVED

LYONS, France, May 10—(INS)—An 11-year-old girl, bruised, crying and protectively holding her pet dog in her arms, was uncovered today by rescuers digging in the ruins of two apartment houses which collapsed from their hillside positions in a landslide Sunday morning.

The child was the daughter of Dr. Chevalier Joly. She and a brother, who was away from home at the time of the disaster, were the only survivors of her family.

Seven bodies had been recovered today and 25 still were missing.

NEW YORK, May 10.—(AP)—Fire today destroyed the tower of Mt. St. Michael's Academy, in the Bronx, but none of the 350 boy pupils, ranging from 5 to 17 years of age, was endangered.

One hundred and fifty of the pupils had breakfasted and were out on the lawn for exercise when the fire was discovered. The day pupils had not yet arrived.

Overall-Clad Body Taken from River

The body of an unidentified man, clad in blue overalls, was removed from the Allegheny river at the foot of Anderson street, North Side, last night, after being discovered by George Porter, of 406 River avenue. The body apparently had been in the river several months, according to Deputy Coroner Robert D. Newman.

Photographers Here For One-Day Meet

More than 100 photographers of Western Pennsylvania will be in Pittsburgh today for an all-day conference of the Triangle Photographer's Association. Dr. Solon J. Buck, director of the Historical Society of Western Pennsylvania, will be a speaker.

PITTSBURGHERS LOSE $42,500 EACH MONTH

Light and Bus Rates Stand As Concerns Fail to Order Small Cut Into Effect

Pittsburghers are losing about $42,500 a month as a result of the delay in action on plans to secure lower electricity rates and bus fares.

On February 2, following widespread agitation for a revision of all utility rates to conform to the declining levels of wages and commodity prices, Frank R. Phillips, president of the Philadelphia Company, offered small reductions in an effort to prevent the case being brought before the Public Service commission.

COUNCIL UNDECIDED

Since then, City Council has been undecided whether to accept the compromise reductions and give up plans for further action, or to appeal to the Public Service Commission for more substantial cuts. Others have insisted that since Phillips has conceded reductions were feasible, he should put them into effect at once, regardless of Council's future actions.

The Duquesne Light Company and the Pittsburgh Motor Coach Company, both Philadelphia Company subsidiaries, indicated that the new rates could be made effective within a short time after their acceptance but indicated that the proposition would have to be accepted with the understanding that no further action be taken before the commission.

Phillips estimated that the reduction in receipts to result from the lower rates would amount to $360,000 a year for the light company and $150,000 for the bus company. This saving of $510,000 a year would amount to $42,500 on a monthly basis.

CUTS PROPOSED

Assuming that the reductions could have been made effective on March 1, if they had been immediately accepted, Pittsburghers would have saved $85,000 in March and April and would have a further saving in the present month.

The proposal made by the company was a cut of 1-cent a kilowatt hour on power billed in the first group and the sale of five bus tickets for $1 in place of the straight fare of 25 cents or nine tickets for $2.

McKees Rocks Men Face Vote Charges

Testimony was being taken in Criminal Court before Judge William H. McNaugher today in the election case against "Kitty" Gray, alias George R. Mack, 509 Furnace street, McKees Rocks, charged with having voted four times under different names in the First District of the First Ward at the September primary.

Trial of three other McKees Rocks men was scheduled to follow the Gray case. Acting Constable Mike Legost and Special Policeman Saul Roth were to face charges of intimidating voters, while George Panyko was to be tried on a charge that he destroyed sample ballots, all in the First District of the Second Ward.

"The School Board voted to let out 14 grade teachers and two high school teachers. The grade schools with an attendance of 3,100 have decreased and the high school with 650 students will increase. We must economize in some way. We will consolidate some of the rooms. Collection of school taxes last year was very bad. This half have paid and the board kept the taxes at 27 mills the same as last year. The board saved $25,000 in its last year's budget. On account of consolidating the rooms and conserving on the buying of books and supplies there will be another saving in operation for the coming year. We are replacing the 16 with six local girls who are graduating from the teachers' normal school."

Henry C. Hogg, ... the School Board, ... for seven ... said:

"Politics has nothing to do with it. It was one of the saddest ordeals I have ever been through. The board held many meetings before the decision. We tried to give both the teachers and the taxpayers a square deal."

POLITICS CHARGED

Frank Wilde, ... Citizens Committee, said:

"Most undoubtedly it is nothing more than politics. A majority of the teachers who were let out are local people. Why, when they were notified of their dismissals they were practically told by the board that they were not with the right political faction. Take the case of the manual training teacher. He has been giving his best for the past seven years and everybody thinks the world of him. And what does the board do but appoint a political leader in his place. The Citizens Committee held a meeting last week, and we intend to hold many more meetings in the future to try to get to the bottom of the School Board's actions."

LOSES TO TWO ROBBERS

JOSEPH ALTON . . . . HE LOST A ONE-ROUND BATTLE TODAY

Ex-Boxer Alton, pictured in the restaurant, 1424 Fifth avenue, where today he was knocked out by two armed bandits who escaped with $200. He recovered enough to hurl a napkin holder (see picture) and see the license number. This is a Sun-Telegraph picture.

BANDITS BEAT EX-BOXER

He also lost $200.

Alton, rotund and gray, was not in prime fighting condition when two of the bandits walked into the lunch room shortly before 10 o'clock. Both intruders carried guns. Shoving the muzzle into Alton's mid-section, one of the holdup men ordered:

"Stick 'em up."

Alton clinched.

The holdup men relieved the fallen Alton of the money from his pocket and fled from the place. As they went through the front door, Alton revived, picked up a metal napkin holder and hurled it at the intruders.

He rushed to the door in time to see them drive away in a small blue coupe, with a third man who had kept watch in the car outside. Alton gave police the license number of the bandit machine.

DO YOU INHALE?

Why are other cigarettes silent on this vital question?

DO you inhale? Seven out of ten people know they do. The other three inhale without realizing it. Every smoker breathes in some part of the smoke he or she draws out of a cigarette.

Do you inhale? Lucky Strike has dared to raise this vital question . . . because certain impurities concealed in even the finest, mildest tobacco leaves are removed by Luckies' famous purifying process. Luckies created that process. Only Luckies have it!

Do you inhale? Remember—more than 20,000 physicians, after Luckies had been furnished them for tests, basing their opinions on their smoking experience, stated that Luckies are less irritating to the throat than other cigarettes.

Do you inhale? Of course you do! So be careful. Safeguard your delicate membranes!

Commissioner Mansfield's Negotiations Over Right Of Way Believed Near End

Quietly negotiating with the Pennsylvania Water Company, County Commissioner William D. Mansfield is understood to have about completed negotiations for an amicable settlement of the Allegheny River boulevard controversy. The boulevard was styled by Commissioner Charles C. McGovern during his days as minority commissioner as "a terrible engineering bungle."

Mansfield was appointed a committee of one several months ago to negotiate with the water company. Since that time he has held several conferences with George S. Davison, president of the water company, trying to arrive at a satisfactory figure for the company's property which is needed to carry the boulevard by the plant at Nadine Station at full width, rather than narrowing it down from a 60-foot to a 20-foot roadway at this point.

The last estimate to build a viaduct at the plant was figured at approximately $500,000.

Commissioner Mansfield said today:

"In the tentative settlement there is a change of the harbor line adjacent to the Pennsylvania Water Company property. The county engineers and the War Department engineers have conferred, and it is believed the change can be made. If it is arranged to change the harbor line, there is nothing in the way of drawing the agreements and submitting them to the Commissioners and water company officials for approval. It is understood that the Pennsylvania Water Company's directors gave Mr. Davison authority to complete the negotiations. Under the plan the cost will be considerably less than the original $280,000 estimate of the county engineers."

In the opinion of leading attorneys there is no question but that the water company's right of eminent domain is paramount

BOOTHS OPENED WITHOUT BIDS

Although no contracts have been let for the concessions in North and South Parks, a free lance concessionaire is operating there. He is William Bailey, former operator with his father of a restaurant in Diamond street.

Director of Property and Supplies Ray Sprigle yesterday explained why the concessions have not been let on competitive bids, although that is the method planned by the Commissioners. He said:

"It has taken a long time to get the specifications in shape. There was a question about the legality of regulating prices. I believe hot dogs, ice cream cones and sandwiches should be sold for a nickel. The specifications are now ready and the bids should be advertised for soon.

"In the meantime there was no provision for taking care of people now using the parks. I put Bailey on in the interim. He is to pay the county a percentage.

RIDE 'THUMBER' DIES IN CRASH

A man tentatively identified as Edward (Scotty) Blake, 55, of Soho, was killed and John Ryan, 29, of 110 Kirkpatrick street, injured when a motorcycle they were riding crashed into a parked automobile in Forbes street near the Armstrong Tunnels last night.

Ryan, driver of the cycle, was treated at Mercy Hospital and then arrested on a reckless driving charge. The victims were taken to the hospital by A. M. Kirchner, of 1537 Dormont avenue, Dormont. Ryan told police, they said, that Blake "thumbed" him for a ride downtown.

John F. Clary, 45, of 311 Fifth avenue, Carnegie, died last night in the hospital in Martins Ferry, O., from injuries suffered Friday in an automobile accident near Cadiz.

COUNTY DELAYS TOWN HALL ACTION

Commissioners Await Advice After State's High Court Upholds Nicola Location

Although the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania has upheld President Judge James R. Macfarlane, of Common Pleas Court, by refusing an injunction against the purchase of land for a town hall on the Nicola site, the county is not much nearer having its $6,000,000 auditorium, it was declared today.

The question now before the County Commissioners is whether they will consider the Supreme Court order as final or wait for F. F. Nicola to sue for damages.

Asked which course they would follow, Commissioners C. M. Barr and W. D. Mansfield said they would have to confer with the county legal forces before venturing comment. Barr said:

"Until our solicitor has had time to study the case thoroughly, I must admit that I am not familiar enough with it to express any opinion."

Mansfield said:

"This is an extremely important and involved question, and I have no comment to make at this time."

The Supreme Court decision given yesterday in Philadelphia upheld the local court's decision that $8 a square foot for the Nicola property in Schenley Farms is not excessive, that the location is not improper or in violation of the city zoning laws, nor was the contract improperly let by the former Board of County Commissioners.

The suit of Ada B. Sheets, the Masonic Hall Association and Syria Temple protested the purchase of the Nicola property on these grounds, with Attorney O. K. Eaton representing them.

NO girl can be attractive to men if her skin is blemished. Why miss the admiration and good times that are your right?

There is a real scientific way to correct disfiguring skin faults. Ordinary creams and lotions won't do it. But Noxzema will! 6,000,000 women know it as the medical way to skin beauty.

This greaseless, white, medicated cream is much more than a face cream. It combines penetrating antiseptics that reach to the bottom of the pores and purge away all clogging, festering, poisonous matter—and soothing balms that heal, soften, refine the course, irritated skin surface.

For years Noxzema has been prescribed even in severe skin conditions. Nurses, seeing what wonders it worked, adopted Noxzema as their own beauty protector and recommended it to others. Try Noxzema yourself and see how much clearer, smoother, finer your skin can become while you sleep.

Apply Noxzema at bedtime, after removing make-up. (Greaseless—will not stain). In the morning you will see natural, wholesome skin loveliness beginning to emerge—disfiguring pimples, blackheads, large pores, oiliness or other skin faults noticeably improved. Use Noxzema also as a powder base and to make rough red hands soft and white.

PIRATE-BRAVE GAME OFF

SPORT COMMENT

By James J. Long

Fans Unfair to Vaughan. Bottomley on Market
Pace Change Essential. Girl Boat Pilot's Task.

BUC RECRUIT MERITS ENCOURAGEMENT

WHILE IT WAS unfortunate that a heckling crowd booed Floyd Vaughan yesterday due to exuberance when a chance for a double play presented itself, proved so costly as to cause the tenth defeat of the Pirates in their last 11 games, the action of a few of the spectators in razzing the young shortstop was decidedly unfair. It isn't Vaughan's fault that he's out there playing regularly in the toughest position on the field after only one year's professional experience. He is merely obeying orders and doing his best. Such things must happen in the course of any recruit's development, and it would help matters a lot if Vaughan were encouraged rather than criticized.

No one else felt the effects of the adverse break so keenly as the young shortstop himself. He was the picture of dejection when he approached Manager Gibson after the game and said "I know it was my fault that we lost that one, Mr. Gibson. I'm sorry." Gibby did the right thing by patting the boy on the back, advising him to forget it and assuring him that he was in there to stay and in time would be a great ball player. Similar encouragement is due Vaughan from the fans. Eventually he'll prove worthy of it.

Floyd Vaughan

THE FAILURE OF the A's to get better than an even break in a four-game series with Cleveland their first meeting of the year with a western club doesn't brighten the outlook of the Mackmen for a showing that will carry them to another pennant after a poor start.

For the secret of the Athletics' flag success has been largely their ability to maul the western clubs in addition to the Red Sox. Last year's records give eloquent testimony of this condition in the American League. It was because of a big clean up against the West that the White Elephants finished in front.

AGAINST THE YANKEES and Senators the A's were able to get only an even break. In the season's competition with those two clubs it was fifty-fifty all around. The Macks won 11 out of 22 from New York and it was the same against Washington.

But against the West it was different. The Athletics cleaned up 69 games out of 88, taking 19 out of 22 from Chicago, 18 out of 22 from Cleveland, 18 out of 22 from Detroit, and 14 out of 22 from St. Louis. They'll have to do much better against the other western clubs in the present intersectional series than they did against Cleveland to indicate that they're going to enjoy the same old advantage.

IN TRYING TO impress on young Hal Schumacher the fact that before he can hope to be a lasting success in the majors he's got to learn a change of pace, the same trick that Otis Crandall is trying to teach to the Pirate pitchers, Giant players are recalling what Grover Alexander once said on the subject. "If a pitcher took a rifle into the box with him and fired bullets across the plate," Alexander remarked, "in a little while some of those hitters would start slapping the bullets back at him. The speed must be changed to spoil their timing. Speed is a great asset to a pitcher, but speed alone will not get him by. He has got to pull the string on his fast one once in a while—that is, slow it up a little and catch the hitters off balance."

Jim Bottomley

SEVERAL PLAYER TRADES are likely to be made in the big leagues before the list goes down June 15, and it is said the Cardinals will figure in at least one of them. Once more the gossips have it that Jim Bottomley will be thrown on the baseball market.

Half a dozen times during the last year or two, Bottomley has been reported as being slated for a trade, but he has continued to do business at the same old stand. This time rumor has it that he has been definitely pushed out of the St. Louis picture by Jim Collins and that his first-base job is gone for good.

DISCUSSING THE CHANGED conditions in baseball with Dan Daniel, Herb Pennock, veteran left-hander of the Yankees, pointed out a new angle to show that things are not what they used to be.

Pennock recalled that Frank Baker had won the sobriquet of Home Run by hitting nine four-baggers for the A's in an entire season, and then he pointed out that last year Wes Ferrell, of the Indians, though a pitcher working only every fourth or fifth day, had poled out the same number of homers, incidentally a new record for hurlers.

HORSEMANSHIP, JUDGMENT OF pace and other things may count for considerable, but according to Jimmy McCoy, leading rider at Aurora at present, the one thing that makes a jockey good is luck. "Just that and nothing else," he says. "If you're lucky, everything breaks right. If you're unlucky, nothing you can or will do has any effect. I know. I've ridden in such streaks that I've simply hung up my tack and taken a rest. Good head and hands—yes. But you'd better be coupled with good fortune, too." McCoy wears goggles while riding. "But I don't wear them for the same reason Chick Hafey does," he explains. "I can see all right, but they keep dirt out of my eyes, especially when I'm forced to come from behind."

YOU HAVEN'T HEARD the last of Top Flight just because it was found advisable to withdraw her from the Kentucky Derby of last Saturday after she had been installed as favorite on the strength of her undefeated record as a 2-year-old. Her owner, Cornelius V. Whitney, is still hopeful of getting somewhere with the filly in the fight for 1932 turf honors.

Top Flight will be in action again at Belmont Park during the meeting that is to open Thursday. There she will race against fillies only, but it is planned to have her make a bid for the 3-year-old championship later at the Saratoga meeting, in which Whitneys intends to put her through a stiff campaign.

THE POPULAR IMPRESSION that fighters are cavemen only about the way they are going over with the spectators seated at the ringside, and don't hear the cheers or jeers of the gallery gods is spiked by Baby Arizmendi, Mexico's candidate for the bantamweight championship.

Arizmendi declares that the cheers of the fans in the cheaper seats often spur him on to victory. He never bows or smiles to the ringsiders, always to the boys in the gallery. He says they are the ones that count.

Loretta Turnbull

BOUND FOR ITALY, to compete in the first of a series of European regattas, starting at Lake Garda, May 22 to 29, Miss Loretta Turnbull, of Manorora, Cal., America's champion woman speedboat driver is far less confident of victory than she was when she departed on a similar trip last year. Then it was a foregone conclusion that she would return with a big collection of trophies. This year it's different. For Italy has developed some excellent drivers and advanced far in boat building in the meantime, a keener competitive spirit has been aroused, and winning over there will not be easy. The illness of Edmonia Tuers, of Italy, in Florida this spring for a time threatened to strain international sportboat relations, but the California girl anticipates no reprisal tactics at Lake Garda. Loretta, accompanied by her two brothers, is taking five hulls and seven motors, three of the hulls being new.

LEW FLOORED IN TOUGH BATTLE

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor

One of the smallest crowds that a boxing fan, Luis Herrera of Chicago Mexican lightweight, ever drew here since he became the favorite of the local fans last night saw him at his toughest Pittsburgh fight and on the losing end.

Lew Massey

Lew Massey, chunky Philadelphia Italian took Tony's measure in the 10-round main bout of a show that marked the reopening of Motor Square Garden for boxing. The arena was only about half filled, but it is a good bet that a return match will jam any local fight club. It was one of the best main bouts between two middleweights boxers put on here in years.

This was the second meeting this week between the pair. In the first at Philadelphia Massey floored Tony in the first round only to have the latter come back and box his way to the decision.

TONY LOSES EARLY LEAD

Last night it was Massey who got off to a bad start but he finally hit his stride and came home in front going strong.

For the first four rounds it was all Herrera. He lost his balance and went down twice in the first round but with his speed afoot and in punching and his edge in height and reach he was winning easily. Massey could do nothing at long range and had to be satisfied with pounding the body in the clinches.

Just before the bell ending the third round, Tony brought a trickle of blood from a cut on Massey's right eye and then dropped him cleanly in a neutral corner with a right to the jaw. Massey pulled himself up as the bell rang at the count of two. It looked like a romp for Tony then until Massey began to rally and fight back in the fourth.

The fifth round brought Herrera's undoing. He was going along boxing nicely when he started looking for another good chance to drop in his right and walked right into one himself that shook him up. He couldn't get rid of the effect and was nailed with other solid rights to both the head and body from the short-armed Massey to lose the round. Massey also belted a hard one to the body in Tony's corner at the bell.

DECISION UNANIMOUS

Herrera went back to circling the ring and boxing and earned a shade in the sixth round, but he dropped all of the last four sessions. Massey was getting better and Tony slipping as the fight moved on and it finally got to the point where Massey couldn't miss with his rights and had Tony tincanning and hanging on. The decision at the finish was unanimous in Massey's favor.

It was only the second bout ever lost by Herrera here via the decision route, the other one having been to Johnny Jadich, also of Philadelphia, at the Meyers Bowl last summer. He later evened this score by beating Jadich at the Garden. He also lost a bout on a foul to Phil Goldstein at the Bowl several seasons ago.

Massey weighed 136 pounds and

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY:—AN EMPIRE FOR A BUTTERFLY—Early in 1802, the French ship "Le Naturaliste" landed in the bay on which Melbourne, Victoria, is situated today. Captain Hamelin pronounced the formal annexation of the territory (now the State of Victoria) to France under the name of Terre Napoleon (Napoleonland), while the bay was named Josephine Bay. The French expedition thus stole a march on the English, who had sailed for the same purpose from Sydney a few weeks before. When the English sloop "Investigator", under Captain Flinders, arrived at its destination (West Port) a few days later, the British found that the French ship had temporarily departed for the purpose of hunting an Australian butterfly (Priamus Hamelinus). The Frenchman returned a few days later, but found the English already firmly in possession. An absence of a few days and the beautiful butterfly I drew cost France a territory more than 87,000 square miles in area, constituting the extremely rich State of Victoria in the Commonwealth of Australia today. An Empire for a Butterfly is one of the strangest items in the history of the British Empire in its formative stages. THE LARGEST CITY IN THE WORLD—The City of Honolulu comprises the island of Oahu and extends to all the small islands not included in any other geographical subdivision of Hawaii. Hence it extends 1,350 miles west and 1,100 miles south of the City Hall in Honolulu, and is easily the most extensive city in the world.

BARGAIN BILL CARDED FOR JULY 16

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

The second game of the Pirates' series with the Boston Braves, scheduled at Forbes Field today, was postponed at 10 o'clock this morning because of wet grounds. The Oakland orchard was saturated by last night's downpour, and when the morning brought no warm sun to lift the moisture the battle promptly was called off.

Art Shires

The postponed game will be played off as part of a doubleheader on Saturday, July 16.

Steve Swetonic and Eddie Brandt, who were to have carried the mound burden today, probably will retain their slab assignments when the two clubs resume hostilities tomorrow. It is probable, too, that Art Shires, colorful first baseman, who has been out with a knee injury for two weeks, will be back in the Boston lineup at that time.

Arthur the Great naturally is like a duck out of water when he has to ride the bench, but if you talk with him you soon realize he has unlimited appeal and a brilliant personality. His impulsive wit brings forth sallies that would make a grouch laugh, yet he is very serious about his baseball.

SHIRES LIKES McKECHNIE

He loves the sport and is extremely fond of the National League and of Bill McKechnie. Shires regards Wilkinsburg Bill as a great pilot, and he thinks Bill is one of the best handlers and developers of pitchers to be found in the game.

"Bill surely knows his stuff," quoth Arthur, "and he is going to get somewhere with his ball club. I will not say the Braves are a pennant contender, but I believe we have a chance to finish in one of the money positions. The club has lots to recommend it, including a fine morale."

The gent who nicknamed Arthur "Whataman" was not exactly popping off. Tipping the beam around 190 and standing an inch over six feet, the curly-haired Texan is an impressive athlete, on the silent screen or in the talkies. And, by the way, his bat spoke a .385 piece last year in Milwaukee to lead him back to the main tent, where he seems to belong for more reasons than one.

ERRORS COSTLY

Admirable yet over-anxious youth sank the Pirates yesterday at Forbes Field as the Buccos took on McKechnie's Tribe in the first clash of the season between the two teams. The contest was so bitterly fought the decision did not come until the twelfth, the Braves winning, 6 to 5.

Floyd Vaughan and Tony Piet, the swift pair of rookies around the middle of the diamond, were so eager to make double plays on two occasions they got nobody. The two powerful lads, however, did a lot to put the Pirates out in front, but defensively they still show the effects of their scant major league experiences.

VAUGHAN FUMBLES

Vaughan's fumble of a bounder in the sixth opened the way for a cluster of three tallies which forced a deadlock. Walter Maranville started the push in the twelfth that led to victory. The

TALK ON TENNIS SEALS' FEATURE

Are you a tennis fan? And would you like to know how you can construct and maintain a good tennis court at moderate cost?

Edward D. Seitz of the Pittsburgh Tennis Association will tell you how you can do it in a talk that will be a feature of the weekly program of the Trained Seals of the sports department of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph over Station WCAE tomorrow night. He will appear with Paul G. Sullivan, secretary of the tennis body.

Others on the program are Art (The Great) Shires and Rabbit Maranville, veteran star of the Boston Braves and formerly of the Pirates; Johnny Evers, former Chicago Cubs and Boston Braves star; Charles J. Doyle, baseball scribe; Tom Birks, sports writer, in two songs; Miss Marian Salmon at the piano; Bob Waddell and Elmer Layden, Carnegie Tech and Duquesne University football coaches, respectively; Julius Levin and Harry Keck, who will be master of ceremonies.

As was the case last week, when the Seals featured Ray Fabiani, Paul Waner, Adam Comorosky and other sports notables, Wednesday night's program will go on promptly at 6:30 o'clock daylight saving time, and will continue for 25 minutes.

LOCAL MAN WITH MAX

Sam Abernathy, grandson of the elder Sam, of that name and president of the "Sports Side" connected with the Max Schmeling training camp as a companion in the world heavyweight champion. Abernathy, according to word received here by friends, is elated over his new connection.

REDS GET FREY

CINCINNATI, May 10.—(AP)—Red Wilson, Cincinnati Reds pitcher, was to report today to the Rochester club of the International League in part payment for the return of Benny Frey, whom the Cincinnati outfielder in the trade which brought Chick Hafey here.

Between Rounds

Dave Grove, recent victor over Jimmy Belmont, may get a crack at Ted Yarosz before the latter goes against Fields. The Hickey-Tate Arena is interested in staging the match and will open negotiations within a day or two.

Charley Baxter, local lightweight, who stopped Bronx McArthur in their return bout at Fairmont, W. Va., Friday night, is back home set for further activity, and may appear on one of the bouts on the Canonsburg card. Young Green, Homestead Negro middleweight, with three straight knockout triumphs to his credit, also is being considered for a spot on this bill.

Johnny Isaacs, of New Kensington, boxes Freddie Miller, of Cincinnati, in a 10-round bout on the Ray Miller-Vic Ramos card in the Detroit Olympia Arena Friday night. Isaacs recently defeated Carlos Mazzeo there.

The three Clemente brothers, Leo, Lloyd and Jerry, of Jeannette, all are ready for action again, according to their manager, Buster Bostach, who also has George Parks, the 154-pound star of Duquesne football, following his victories over Emmett Rocco and Tim Powell in the last two starts. Bostach looks for Parks to stage a Pete comeback and earn a crack at Paul (Tarzan) King, Levittown, or some other outstanding 154-pounder at the Meyers Bowl this summer.

Matchmaker Jules Bass at Motor Square Garden will conclude his duties there with next Monday night's show and already is at work on an opening card for Forepaugh Field, June 1. Meanwhile Matchmaker Bob Vogel, of Hickey Park, Millvale, is lining up opponents for Kid Rocco McGarvey and Jack Wilson opening show. Matchmaker Bass, of next week, and Matchmaker Lew Raymond, of the Bowl, is rounding out his program for the three Canonsburg openers, May 23.

within three or four rounds, he cannot longer move about, but has to stand more or less still and pick his spots for punches," Alvis said. "He still is a good puncher, but if Gizzy keeps rushing him and setting the pace, he figures to make matters plenty interesting for Tony."

SEAT SALE OPENS

Incidentally, the seat sale for the Canzoneri battle opened yesterday at the club's new downtown headquarters, 525 Fifth avenue, and was quite brisk. A new scale will be in effect for this show, $1.05, $2, 2.50 and $3. The $2.50 seats are the only change from other seasons.

BOWL MAY GET FIELDS BOUT

Indications are that the Jackie Fields-Ted Yarosz fight will land in the lap of the Meyers Bowl in North Braddock for a summer date instead of being staged at Forbes Field, it developed during the sojourn of Ray Alvis, of Chicago, manager of Fields, in our fair city for his Tony Herrera bout with Lew Massey at Motor Square Garden last night.

The rental fee at Forbes Field is a barrier to placing the bout there. The management of the baseball park wants 20 per cent of the gate receipts plus operating expenses, and the sponsor of the show in that arena cannot see his way clear to breaking even on those terms. As a result, Alvis last night was in a huddle with Lew Raymond, new matchmaker at the Bowl, and if the match materializes here, Raymond likely will land it. Whether or not the title will be at stake remains to be seen. Detroit, where Yarosz recently showed to good advantage, also is bidding for the match.

BOOSTS GIZZY MATCH

Incidentally, Alvis put in a good boost for the Tony Canzoneri-Battling Gizzy non-title bout, which will be the opening feature at the Bowl on May 23. He thinks Gizzy, with his rushing style, stands a good chance of winning.

Alvis recently had his Ray Kiser in with Canzoneri in New Orleans, Tony's home town, and he says Kiser gave the champion quite a run, although he lost the bout. He reports that Canzoneri is slowing down, and says that if Gizzy enters the ring inclined to gamble and fight his fight, and does not stand in too much awe of the champion's reputation, he will be a good bet.

"Canzoneri has reached the stage where, if he does not win

PREAKNESS ACE SCRATCHED

BALTIMORE, May 10.—(AP.)—Slave Ship, Walter M. Jeffords' leading candidate for Saturday's Preakness and 3-year-old honors, was declared out of the $50,000 classic today as the result of a spread hoof.

The Black Toney-Light Ship colt pulled up lame yesterday after winning the second of his two starts this year, beating four other Preakness eligibles. An examination of the injury by Preston M. Burch, his trainer, led to the decision to withdraw him.

Burch said the injury was not serious, but it was possible that the colt would be withdrawn from racing until fall.

BURGOO KING TO START

NEW YORK, May 10.—(AP.)—Barring an unforeseen accident the Kentucky Derby winner Burgoo King will start in the Preakness at Pimlico Saturday, his trainer, Dick Thompson, said today.

Thompson sent Burgoo King through a light gallop at Belmont Park this morning and said he would gallop him again tomorrow before shipping him to Maryland. He will not call on him for any stiff workout, however.

TONIGHT'S FIGHTS

Mickey Walker vs. Johnny Risko, 15 rounds, and Eddie Simon vs. Arthur Hettrick, Johnny Tarr vs. Odell Cleveland and Eddie Lund vs. Santiago Zorilla, 8 rounds each, and Bruno Sala vs. Joe Dunn, 4 rounds, Cleveland.

Leo Ramage vs. Yale Okun, 10 rounds, Los Angeles.

REYNOLDS' PUNCH FEATURE OF NATS' PLAY

FORMER CHISOX STAR USURPS SWAT LEAD

Associated Press.

It hasn't taken Carl Reynolds long to convince his new employers, the Washington Senators, that they drove a very brisk bargain when they obtained him from the Chicago White Sox in one of the winter's most discussed deals.

The speedy outfielder, who joined the Senators in a trade involving the two veteran pitchers, Sam Jones and Irving Hadley, is in no small measure responsible for the fact that Walter Johnson's outfit is leading its closest American League rivals by three full games today.

BOASTS .420 AVERAGE

He's hitting at a .420 clip, the highest average in either league, is second in total hits, notwithstanding a late start, and is as brilliant as ever afield.

Reynolds virtually was the whole show offensively as Washington won yesterday's opener from Cleveland, 3 to 0.

Three other American League contests gave way to rain and cold.

The St. Louis Cardinals put on the day's best act in the National League when they scored three times in the last of the ninth to hand the Brooklyn Dodgers their fourth straight defeat, 7 to 6.

REDS BEAT PHILS

Something similar was seen at Cincinnati, where the Reds pushed across a run in the ninth to down the Phillies, 4 to 3, and break up a pitchers' duel between Owen Carroll and Ed Holley.

Fritz Knothe's single in the twelfth knocked two runs across and the Boston Braves staggered out with a 6 to 5 victory over Pittsburgh, their first in five starts in the west.

The Giants were rained out at Chicago.

Rabbit's single followed by Hargrave's double and Knothe's third hit produced two runs.

Piet led off in the last half of the twelfth with a double and Vaughan walked. Pinch-hitters and emergency pitchers then were thrown into the fight in profusion. Eventually the Piartes scored a run and had the bases jammed, two out and Traynor up with the count three balls and one strike. Pie tried to coax a pass to force a tie, but Ben Cantwell made him ground out.

Geneva Net Team Blanks Waynesburg

BEAVER FALLS, Pa., May 10.—With Geneva leading Waynesburg College, 7 to 0 yesterday, rain put a stop to further tennis action on the Geneva courts with two doubles matches remaining to be finished. The singles went to Geneva in straight order, while the first of the doubles gave Geneva another victory.

All of the bouts were hard-fought. Freddie Fitzgerald, of Youngstown, bested Young Rudy, of Charleroi, to win the referee's decision in the eighth-round semi-final, despite a strong finish in the last round by Rudy. Fitzgerald punched too straight for the willing Rudy. One of the judges voted the bout a draw.

Johnny Curtin, of Canton, O., was floored momentarily by Ray Winbush, Hill Negro welterweight, in the opening round of the first bout, but came back to drop Winbush for seven and four before the round ended, the bell saving Ray. Winbush also was groggy when the gong clanged at the end of the third round, but put up a game battle all of the way. Curtin received the decision.

Orwell First Choice For British Derby

LONDON, May 10.—(AP.)—Orwell, champion 2-year-old of the English turf and winner of the Two Thousand Guineas, remained the favorite for the derby today in the call-over of betting odds, being held at 2 to 1.

SENATORS WIN OVER GENERALS

Charleston won the second game of its series with Clarksburg in the Mid-Atlantic League yesterday at Clarksburg, hammering out an 18-to-7 victory. Manager Walker, of the Generals, used three hurlers in a vain attempt to check the bats of the Senators. Boone and Nagel slammed out homers for Charleston.

Beckley defeated Huntington, 3 to 1, to go into a tie for second place. Rain kept Cumberland and Johnstown idle at Johnstown.

Sandlot Games Again Postponed

Indications today were that the City and West Penn leagues would not be able to open their seasons before tomorrow.

City League lid-lifters carded yesterday were postponed because of rain and were rescheduled for this evening, along with the West Penn loop openers. Grounds already saturated were given another drenching this morning, and the chances of playing any games tonight were regarded as very slight.

Several games were postponed before noon, and indications were that all others would be off the slate by evening.

ANNUAL TENNIS PARTY CARDED AT P. A. A.

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

Net devotees of the district frolic at the P. A. A. this evening as the racquet clans gather for the third annual Tennis Night smoker of the Pittsburgh Tennis Association. Chairman J. Howard Moore has lined up an extensive card of music, luncheon and like entertainment.

The P. T. A. Inter-Club League schedule is slated for release in the course of the soiree and several other features of interest and importance will come up for informal discussion between acts and courses. Festivities get under way at 8:30 p. m.

The Duquesne University net squad, after suffering sundry and various setbacks yesterday, swung into better form to deadlock W. & J., 2-2, in a contest cut short by a severe 6 o'clock shower. Casey, Bluffite top man, dropped 6-2, 6-1 decision to the President leader after still driving duel, while O'Neill, Duke fourth performer, fell before Ludwig, of W. & J., 6-2, 8-6.

Capt. Rege Bullion and Cliff Soisson, however, saved the Red and Blue situation, Bullion by nosing out Graham, second shotsmith of the invaders, 6-3, 4-6, 6-4, and Soisson proving too steady for Perkins, Red and Black No. 3 contender, 6-1, 8-6.

Duquesne and Grove City clash on the Hill asphalt this afternoon in the lone college tilt on today's bill for the Steel City area. Tomorrow the Grovers move on to Carnegie Tech, while Geneva travels to Bethany and the Tartan Plebes jaunt to Shady Side Academy. The summary:

Singles—Thompson, W. & J., defeated Case, Duquesne, 6-2, 6-1; Bullion, Duquesne, defeated Graham, W. & J., 6-3, 4-6, 6-4; Soisson, Duquesne, defeated Perkins, W. & J., 6-1, 8-6; Ludwig, W. & J., defeated O'Neill, Duquesne, 6-2, 8-6.

Doubles—Thompson and Ludwig, W. & J., defeated Casey and Bullion, Duquesne, 6-1, 2-6, 6-4.

HOPEFULNESS ONCE MORE IS TAKING ROOT

By B. C. FORBES

READ THIS

"The jaws are cast out and men walk upon them in public. The lawbreaker is lord of wealth the rich man has lost all. Scants is gold craftsmen are without work the reaper of the harvest gets nothing while he who plowed not profits. The land is depleted I show thee a land turned upside down."

Mr. Forbes

George L. Cochran, a Methodist minister, with whom as an impecunious Jew I once used to pay $2 a week for board and lodging, and who is now president of the Pacific Mutual Life Insurance Company, and a student of history, handed me that yesterday and asked me to guess when it was published. I was stumped. He said:

"That was published in the Egyptian city of Memphis on papyrus 5,000 years ago. So you see that gang rule and business depression were rampant in the land of the Pharaohs more than 2,000 years ago, before the birth of the Christian era."

He supplemented that statement by this cheerful declaration:

"But history reveals that the calamitous period thus pictured was followed by one of unexampled prosperity. So I'm convinced that we Americans of today can well take heart.

"I'm quite sure that America is better circumstanced today for a return of prosperity than Egypt was in the year 3068 B. C."

Mr. Cochran went on:

"There are not many new things under the sun. Only the other day I was reading that the Roman Senate doubtless anxious to get women in their place and save themselves money, passed a law forbidding women to wear ornaments. What do you think happened?"

"The next morning the home of the president of the Senate was surrounded by such a mob of protesting women that it was impossible for him to get out of his house. Finally, he appeared on a balcony and declared that if they would disperse he would see to it that the Senate repealed its decree. And the Senate did."

There are signs that our lawmakers, too, are beginning to heed an aroused public.

Mr. Cochran, now one of the most influential men in California, tells me he has been visiting New York—that just as Egypt emerged from panic to prosperity, he is absolutely confident that the United States will do likewise.

Whereas the indications are that some executives of American companies did their worst to scuttle their own ships by selling out their security holdings, he is one company head who has advised his stockholders not to become panic-stricken and has consistently added to his holdings in his own company.

I find it refreshing to meet and talk with westerners these days. They are either wise enough or foolish enough to adhere steadfastly to the conviction that this country and everything in it are not going to collapse completely.

The financial world is [illegible] and upset over [illegible] but [illegible] under the leadership of President Hoover and more and more supported by public sentiment. Congress will get down to business, adopt a half-way sensible tax program, reasonably balance the budget and play the game. The security [illegible] will [illegible] and [illegible] and unmoved by criticism. The [illegible] of Electric Bond and Share, who originally proposed a stock-buying plan for officers and employes, have come forward with a vigorous defense of the plan's decision to call off the plan. The reasons they expect us to see the matter as convincing, notwithstanding that superficially the deal did strike outside stockholders as [illegible].

In my humble opinion, bankers, especially [illegible] corporations and others subjected to condemnation should, whenever they feel they are entirely innocent, come out boldly with a comprehensive explanation of their action.

TRADE FROZEN BY TARIFFS

BASEL, May 10. (AP.) [illegible]

If the relative position of international balances and payments is continuously to be upset by changes in tariff barriers with profound effect on the equilibrium of different countries, if the flow of capital from one nation to another is to be dammed by obstacles which make the fulfillment of contractual obligations virtually impossible with consequent destruction of general confidence, then an international monetary system cannot function properly.

STEEL BACKLOG AT NEW LOW

NEW YORK, May 10. (AP.) [illegible] the United States Steel Corporation, [illegible] new low since [illegible]. After the corporation's report today disclosed unfilled orders of 4,487,100 tons on April 30, comparing with 5,472,425 tons on March 31.

Today's drop far exceeded Wall Street predictions which had been forecasting a maximum decline equal to the 742,000-ton drop in March. This was the 9th consecutive decrease in the steel backlog.

Unfilled tonnage on February 29 was 6,545,829 tons, January 31, 6,648,150 tons, and on April 30, 1931, 3,897,729 tons.

The tonnage decline reflected the low state of the steel business last month, which resulted in the omission of the Steel common dividend and the 10 per cent wage reduction a few days ago. Operations [illegible] per cent of capacity.

COTTON SELLS AT DECLINE

NEW YORK, May 10. Cotton opened steady today at a decline of 2 to 4 points on selling influenced by the easiness in cables. July sold at 5.63.

The market at the end of the first half hour was only moderately active with the active positions ruling about 2 to 5 points net lower.

The market worked off to net losses of 5 to 6 points later in the morning with July declining to 5.59c and December to 5.98c, but met a little more buying at the decline which was attributed partly to price fixing for the trade. There was also covering and at midday the market showed rallies of a few points from the lowest, ruling about 2 to 5 points below yesterday's closing qiotations.

RUSSIANS SEEK OIL ACCORD

NEW YORK, May 10. (AP.) Konstantin Riabovol, chairman of the Soviet oil export syndicate and one of a group of visiting Russian oil men, authorized a statement clarifying the purpose of a series of oil parleys scheduled for the middle of May.

These meetings will discuss the entire oil export situation," he said, and will not be confined to consideration of the effect of Soviet oil on the world market. He denied published reports inferring that "Soviet oil exports are responsible for the demoralization of the world oil market."

The Soviet syndicate is "not only willing but anxious," he added, "to co-operate in measures which promise to improve the condition of the world oil markets."

OIL PRODUCTION UNDER 1931 AVERAGE

Output in March 2,167,000 Barrels Daily, 72,000 Less Than Yield a Year Ago

WASHINGTON, May 10. (AP.) — The Bureau of Mines reports that production of crude petroleum in the United States during March amounted to 67,139,000 barrels.

This was a daily average of 2,167,000 barrels, an increase of 12,000 over the daily average for February, but 72,000 barrels daily below the daily output of March 1931.

IMPORTS LARGER

Stocks of crude petroleum increased 2,466,000 barrels during the month, due entirely, the bureau said, to gains in inventories of foreign crude. Stocks of domestic crude were drawn upon to the extent of about 700,000 barrels.

Imports of crude petroleum were 4,840,000 barrels in March, 4,708,000 in February and 3,715,000 in March 1931, and imports of refined products were 4,028,000 February, and 4,065,000 in March 1931.

The total demand during March was 79,400,000 barrels compared with 73,036,000 in February and 82,966,000 in March 1931.

TOTAL STOCKS LOWER

Exports of crude petroleum totalled 2,090,000 barrels in March, 1,897,000 in February and 1,586,000 in March, 1931, and refined products exported totalled 7,051,000 barrels against 5,892,000 in February, and 7,241,000 in March 1931. The domestic demand was 70,259,000 barrels in March, 65,247,000 in February, 74,139,000 in March 1931.

The total of all stocks of oil in the country was 633,107,000 barrels in March compared with 623,128,000 in February and 656,833,000 in March 1931. The stocks on hand were estimated by the bureau to be the equivalent of 247 days supply.

In the language of the business world, there is, perhaps, no more misunderstood word than "service." Yet at the Mellon National Bank this word has a very definite meaning. It means effort to the utmost in providing for the banking needs of the community and the individual. To this end, it has been the aim of the Bank to develop a well rounded and efficient banking organization and to provide facilities for the transaction of all phases of the banking business.

STOCK PRICES MAKE LITTLE PROGRESS

Woolworth, Sears, Du Pont Push Up 1 to 2 Points; Trading Extremely Dull

NEW YORK, May 10.—(AP.)—The stock market took on a slightly brighter hue today, although it failed to manifest anything in the way of impressive strength, as trading remained extremely sluggish.

The list managed to push ahead a point or two after early hesitancy. An upturn in United States government bonds, less pressure against the dollar in the foreign exchange markets, and a less gloomy report of weekly freight car loadings than anticipated in some quarters, more than counterbalance United States Steel's unfavorable tonnage report. Oils remained a conspicuously firm group. Food shares were somewhat heavy for a time.

Among issues advancing 1 to 2 points were American Telephone, American Can, American Tobacco "B," Allied Chemical, Du Pont, Atlantic Refining, Consolidated Gas, Eastman, Liggett & Myers "B," Ohio Oil, Standard of California, Sears, Woolworth, Santa Fe, Union Pacific, Westinghouse and Case. General Motors advanced a major fraction in fairly active trading, and other issues making similar gains included United States Steel, Standard of New Jersey and Southern Pacific. Royal Dutch was somewhat heavy. Best & Co. weakened on the dividend omission.

United States Steel's drop of 145,487 tons in its unfilled orders during April to a new low since its monthly records have been kept, at 2,326,926 tons, may have been somewhat worse than expected in some quarters, but the slack business in that industry appeared to have been well discounted. Loadings of revenue freight in the week ended April 30 were off 8,368 cars from the previous week, but this showing did not have a particularly unfavorable influence on sentiment, in view of yesterday's gloomy estimates.

Considerable interest was manifested in financial circles in developments in the oil industry, particularly the international conference of leading producers which is expected to get under way here this week. J. B. A. Kessler, managing director of the Royal Dutch Shell group, one of the leading factors in world petroleum, seemed to take a somewhat hopeful view on his arrival for the conferences today, but avoided predictions. The statement of the head of the Russian delegation that the Soviet Oil Syndicate was anxious to co-operate to improve conditions was viewed favorably. It was also noted that Atlantic Refining Company ordered disbursement of the regular dividend of 25 cents.

CAR LOADINGS DOWN 8,368

WASHINGTON, May 10.—Loading of revenue freight in the week ended April 30, totaled 554,612 cars, a decrease of 8,368 cars under the preceding week, a decrease of 220,730 cars under the corresponding week in 1931, and a decrease of 388,662 cars under the same week in 1930, the American Railway Association announces.

Russians Purchase More Canada Wheat

CHICAGO, May 10.—Russia has purchased three cargoes of Manitoba wheat out of Vancouver for immediate shipment to Vladivostok. This makes a total of eight cargoes of Canadian wheat purchased by Russia since last Wednesday. In addition the Soviet has also purchased three cargoes of Australian wheat.

Prices Stage Rally On Paris Exchange

PARIS, May 10.—The Paris Bourse quickly recovered today from the sinking spell touched off by the results of the French election. French bonds recovered their losses and similar rallies took place in other sections of the list.

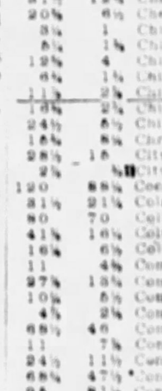
Traders on Side Lines as Street Scans Tax News From Washington

With speculative initiative still at a low ebb the market seems to have settled into a trading rut. Interest is still centered on Washington almost to the exclusion of other factors in the situation, and stocks presumably are destined to blow alternately hot and cold as the tax bill reported out on the Senate floor progresses through the final stages. Hopes for a reversion to the sales tax as a base for the new schedule seemed to have faded considerably over the week-end. The stock market apparently encounters sufficient selling on the bulges to check rising tendencies, but at the same time, it is to be noted that demand of a substantial character asserts itself on the recurrent dips.



Wall street heard reports that an important announcement might be expected shortly bearing on Consolidated Gas. One story around had it that directors of the company would meet within a few days and that action would be considered at that time looking toward a substantial reduction in overhead.

The Spokane (Wash.) Chronicle quoting "high authority" says that revival of the proposal for consolidation of the Great Northern, Northern Pacific, Burlington and the Spokane, Portland and Seattle Railway systems is being considered seriously by controlling interests." Impression that the four-road merger will be brought before the Interstate Commerce Commission again at an early date was gained definitely Saturday in a conversation with Ralph Budd, former Great Northern president, now at the helm of the Burlington, and Arthur Curtis James, largest individual stockholder in the Hill group. Neither would commit himself, however, the paper said.

Reports in the Street credit the Lehman Corporation with having been a heavy purchaser of its own shares during the past week. Assuming that the corporation purchased as much as 25,000 shares, the outstanding capitalization would now amount to approximately 757,000 shares. The common stock is the sole capital liability.

Accumulation of steel sheet orders within the last few days has been sufficient to reopen the Niles (Ohio) plant of the Mahoning Valley Steel Company. The plant schedule for the current week has been indefinite, but on May 10 the plant will resume on a 75 per cent basis. Republic Steel Corporation has resumed production at its Warren, O., blast furnace, several open-hearth furnaces and rolling mills, after a half-week's idleness.

The Corporation Trust Company has filed articles of incorporation at Dover, Del., for Pan American Foreign Corporation. This new corporation will take over all the foreign properties of Pan American Petroleum and Transport Company, and in exchange, Standard Oil of Indiana will acquire in addition to $50,000,000 cash, a stock interest in Standard Oil Company of New Jersey. Authorized capital of the new corporation is $1,100,000 class A shares and $3,000,000 class B shares, both of $1 par value.

MARKET MUST PROVE RIGHT TO EXIST

Senate Probe of Exchange In Accord with Precedent; Public Exploiters Scored

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service

NEW YORK, May 10.—The inquest into stock exchange methods and morals by the Senate Committee on Banking and Currency came in accordance with its historical schedule.

Latter phases of bear markets are usually dominated by wrath against Wall Street machinery. This normal phenomenon [illegible]

Mr. Rukeyser

[illegible] term historical perspective are inclined to look upon the present outburst against organized markets as just another display of emotionalism in finance.

However, smallness, based on precedent, may be costly to the stock exchange and to the country.

ON PROVING GROUND

It should be recognized that never before in history has so many persons brought their lifetime savings to the market place and staked them on what they believed to be reliable information.

The stock exchange to some extent has been unjustly blamed for the misconduct of houses of issue and pools, but the stock exchange will not be wholly free of blame for financial debacle so long as it identifies its interest in part at least with those of public exploiters, instead of exclusively with the public itself which patronizes it.

Like other institutions the stock exchange is today on the proving ground and it must justify its right to further existence through demonstrating its social usefulness.

GUARD INVESTORS

The widespread popular insistence on action makes it imperative that the stock exchange should realistically re-examine its practices, and heighten the safeguards which protect the ultimate investor who pays the commissions.

In order to provide financial safety and disinterested advice to patrons, the stock exchange might well consider divorcing the business of commission brokers from the banking function of bringing out new issues.

It might go still further, and consider whether it is proper for commission brokers to speculate on their own account. Such irresponsible mixing of the function of broker and agent is permitted on neither the Paris Bourse nor the London Stock Exchange.

'SHORTS' NECESSARY

The confusion of functions may become scandalous when specialists, whose books summarize all the secrets of articulate supply and demand, are permitted to use such trusted information for their own speculative gain. In a more civilized market such data will be locked up in vaults and held sacred.

Restrictions of brokers to the business of acting as agents for customers would automatically deal with the waste of excessive floor speculation.

It is a mistake to assume that all the evils of speculation center around short selling. As a matter of fact, in normal times certainly, short selling is a necessary counterpart of marginal buying. However, practices of brokers in failing to pass along to customers premiums on loaned stock require attention.

GRID PRICES SLASHED

PITT AND TECH DECIDE ON NEW SCALE

By JESS CARVER

Dan Harrison, Buddy Overend, the Pitt Athletic Council and the Carnegie Tech Sport Board have come out of a figurative huddle with a new scale of football ducat prices calculated to assist in the sucking down of the depression and of lightening the burden of John J. Fan's punch-drunk purse.

According to an announcement from Director Harrison's office today, the very top price for Pitt games next fall will be $4 for box seats at the Notre Dame game. The top for Tech contests here at home will be $2.50 for box pasteboards for the Wash-Jeff encounter. Reserved seats for the Pitt-Army tussle will be priced at three bucks a throw and for the Ohio State, Notre Dame and Stanford classes and $2.50 for the Tech and Duquesne affair. You'll be able to sit in the 50-yard sections at the Ohio Northern opener for $1.00 and on the ends for half a check.

SEASON TICKETS $12

Season tickets for Pitt games alone will be sold at $12 per copy and for combined Pitt-Tech contests for $14. Under this plan, early purchasers will save 20 per cent and will be able to secure choice seats in the center of the stands for an average of less than $2 per game. Not bad, not bad at all.

	Seats
	Side	Box
Notre Dame	$ 3.00	$ 4.00
Army	3.00	3.00
Ohio State	2.50	3.00
Notre Dame	2.50	3.00
Stanford	2.50	3.00
Carnegie Tech	2.50	3.00
Duquesne	2.50	3.00
Northern	1.00	1.50
Carnegie Tech games
Pitt games	2.00	3.00
W & J	2.00	2.50
Combined Pitt-Carnegie season tickets	$12.00	$15.00

The Tipoff

Ken Loeffler, former Penn State basketball and basketball luminary and for the past four years coach of basketball at Geneva College, is ready to make his mark on a new one-year contract at the Beaver Falls school. He has announced he has made a name for himself as a coach, his Geneva teams have won the majority of their games and have been tri-state district title contenders for the past four seasons.

We are not yet through looking at this fellow Moose Krause, of Notre Dame. Moose showed here in football and in basketball, and on Saturday, will be back again, this time as a weight man on the Irish track team, which engages Pitt in a dual meet in the Pitt stadium Saturday.

As a feature of the Pitt-Notre Dame meet, Jim MacMurdo, Pitt's all-America tackle star, will attempt to shatter the existing record of 56 feet 6 inches in the shot put, set several years back by Tom Welch. If MacMurdo ever gets hold of a good one, he'll throw the iron ball away. Maybe with Krause standing on the side lines Saturday handing him the old bird, he'll tore the trick.

WASHINGTON, May 10.—That National League race so far goes to show that baseball experts certainly are no judges of horseflesh. A month ago, the scribes saw the Boston Braves as a Shetland pony and they turned out to be a very dark Arabian horse.

The Giants, who were supposed to burn up the league, forgot to bring along their matches, and the Cards, that were figured to climb right to the top, must have left their spurs at home.

Of course, the Red Sox started the season with lilies in their hands, but when you see any Boston team in the first division it's like finding a pearl necklace in an oyster stew.

Berlenbach Sued For Promise Breach

NEW YORK, May 10.—(AP.)—Two siftings by Paul Berlenbach, former light-heavyweight champion, were too many, Claire Feldner, 27, his tall brunette neighbor, testified in Supreme Court at Long Island City yesterday. She is suing the fighter for $50,000, charging breach of promise.

BOLEY RELEASED

PHILADELPHIA, May 10.—(AP.)—John P. Boleraky, better known to the baseball world as Joe and Jack Boley, for six years shortstop with the Philadelphia Athletics, has been given his unconditional release.

Golfing Clinics Planned by P. G. A. Body

NEW YORK, May 10.—(AP.)—The Professional Golfers Association plans to set up clinics in four sections of the country where pros will be able to find a cure for whatever golfing ailments may be impairing their usefulness.

In a general way the clinics will furnish expert counsel on the three major duties of the average country club pro—teaching, club making and greens keeping.

SHANNOPIN PAIR TOPS FIELD IN PRO-AMATEUR

By TOM BIRKS

Flashing an unbeatable brand of golf on the homeward nine, Fred L. Stout, Jr., and Charley Manning, home professional, outclassed a representative field of golfers to win the pro-amateur 18-hole best ball tourney, with a 66, five under par, at Shannopin Country Club yesterday.

George Flinn and Jock Kennedy, carrying the Fox Chapel banner together with Jack Stewart, of Thornburg, and H. F. Miller, Jr., of Aliquippa, tied for second place with a par 71, while Walter Johnstone and Tom Green, of Butler Country Club, shot a 72 for fourth money.

VICTORS PLAY WELL

The Shannopin combination easily lost the opposition once the turn was reached. Par had been matched on the outgoing nine, four birdies and an eagle, the eagle falling to Manning on the par four thirteenth hole.

When the turn was reached Pete O'Hara, playing with Dr. Cratty, of Edgewood, and George McBride, playing with Howard Rigby, had shot a best ball of 34. However, plenty of trouble was found on the homeward trek. Peter and Dr. Cratty finished with a 39, giving them a 73, while McBride and Rigby ran into plenty of trouble and took a 41 for a 75. The scores:

Charles Manning and F. L. Stout, Jr., Shannopin	35-31—66
Jock Kennedy and George Flinn, Fox Chapel	35-36—71
Jack Stewart, Thornburg, and H. F. Miller, Jr., Aliquippa	36-35—71

HOCKEY LEASE CANCELED

By CARL W. SHATTO

A new lease will have to be prepared before Duquesne Garden will be available for hockey next season, officials of the Pittsburgh Railways Company, owner of the Garden, announced today.

Terms of a long-term lease granted Roy D. Schooley, and sub-let by Schooley to the Arena Corporation were not met by the latter group, according to the railways company, and the lease has been canceled. Illness prompted Schooley to relinquish control of the club to local banking interests, and it is understood the banking interests, in turn, will dispose of the club before another season rolls around.

Transfer of the control of the Pittsburgh club was one of the major topics up for discussion at the annual meeting of the International Hockey League in Syracuse, N. Y., yesterday. Although no announcement of any definite decision regarding the matter was made, it is a virtual certainty that the league will use every possible means to keep Pittsburgh in the organization. Elmer Whitehill, representing the banking interests, and Coach Charley Reid, attended the meeting.

The cancellation of the lease does not mean that Pittsburgh is to be without hockey. The railways company will grant a new lease in the event the club is under new control. The league regards Pittsburgh as one of its most lucrative units and will see to it that a franchise is kept here.

IMPORTANT MATTERS TO CONSIDER WITH RESPECT TO YOUR ESTATE

The Importance of a Dependable Trustee

AFTER your death, it is almost inevitable that contingencies unforeseen by you will arise in connection with your family or estate. For example, a protracted illness of a member of your family, or the education of your children, or travel may require more money than the income from your estate provides. Perhaps a relatively large sum of money might be suddenly and urgently needed by a member of your family for some particular purpose.

You may provide beforehand for such contingencies by bestowing discretionary powers upon the Trustee under your Will, giving him the right to exercise his own judgment in meeting emergencies, just as you would do were you still alive.

In this case, you must be assured that the Trustee under your Will is possessed of sufficient knowledge, judgment and experience to be worthy of your confidence.

The Union Trust Company of Pittsburgh has fully justified the confidence reposed in it by many hundreds of clients of moderate and large means who have chosen it to act as Trustee under their Wills.

CHAPTER XXIX

"Luckner is a queer old bird," the chief remarked. "Once he was offered a chair as professor of pathological anatomy at the University of Berlin. He turned it down because he did not like Berlin, and took a lesser job at Heidelberg. I think he is at heart a great detective, but he will devote himself to criminal research only as a special favor to me. He has the gift for investigation, and with all of the resources of science at his disposal he could become one of our most valuable agents. Of course he's old, but he could train his successor so that the work could go on when he grew too old or tired. But he will not hear of it. He regards detective work as degrading to a scientist. He says he is not interested in catching the criminal, but he wants to understand the crime. But this time he has made, in an amazing short period, a truly extraordinary discovery. Whoever is guilty must certainly consider himself beyond detection."

Again he relapsed into silence as the car sped on through Central Park in a wearing diagonal route, a speedy one-way passage since Colt had put into effect the new traffic regulations. And then a vicious worming through the tangled traffic across Fifth avenue and into the purlieus of the far East Side where, on the waterfront, majestic modern apartment houses flourish today in uneasy democracy with slaughter-houses and tenements.

VISITS DOCTOR'S OFFICE

Within five minutes we stopped again before the door of that apartment house where mysterious death had overtaken two beautiful women—and where Dr. Baldwin had his office suite.

Across the street in front of another apartment house a man was standing in a chasseur's uniform of blue and gold and with a visored cap. Instantly I recognized him as one of our best men from headquarters on duty trailing Dr. Baldwin. I knew, too, that his partner was not far away—probably watching the rear entrance. This was certain evidence that Dr. Baldwin had not yet returned to his home, but was still in his office. One unfamiliar with such practices would be astonished at how quickly the door man across the street could divest himself of the gaudy costume, when and if it became necessary to trail his suspects further.

A patrolman in the lobby and another in the elevator saluted as the Commissioner and I entered and rode up to the second floor. We made our way down a narrow corridor until we came to a door on which was lettered the legend:

"Hugh Baldwin, M. D. Office Hours 10 A. M. to 11:30 A. M., 2:30 P. M. to 4:00 P. M. Consultation by Appointment Only."

Colt turned the knob and opened the door. We found ourselves in an outer office where a business-like woman of about 30 years, a sexless creature with mouse-colored hair, sat at a desk, making out bills and addressing envelopes. She looked up inquiringly, then recognizing Colt's familiar features, she stood up in flushed confusion.

WOMAN IS EXCITED

She turned and was about to open a massive door behind her when suddenly the front door opened violently. A short and stout woman, spherical and plump, her face crimson and her blue eyes snapping angrily, rushed in and, ignoring Colt and myself, confronted the other woman.

"Is Hugh in there, Miss Simon?" demanded the newcomer, panting and excited.

"Why, yes, Mrs. Baldwin, he is, but these gentlemen—"

"These gentlemen can wait."

It was evident that Mrs. Baldwin was in a mental turmoil. A graceless and rather pitiful little figure, she strode quickly to the closed door and seized the knob. But the door did not yield. It was locked. With a glare in her eyes, Mrs. Baldwin turned toward the secretary.

"Is there a patient in there?"

"No!"

"Open the door," the wife commanded furiously.

In a frenzy of anger, Mrs. Baldwin seized the knob of the door with both hands as if only more of her strength were needed to pull it free. She rattled it in a violent ecstasy of energy.

"Hugh," she screamed, "Open this door and let me in!"

DOCTOR FOUND DEAD

There was no answer.

"Hugh!" she cried again. Still no answer. With a bewildered air, Mrs. Baldwin looked around at us for the first time.

"He doesn't answer," she said as if stating a miracle.

This answer decided Thatcher Colt.

"I believe it would be better if you would permit me to open this door," he proposed, his glance wavering between Mrs. Baldwin and the secretary. Neither replied.

Colt produced a skeleton key, one of several always in his pocket. For a few seconds he rattled the key uncertainly in the lock, then he gave a violent push and we heard the snapping of the winch.

Thatcher Colt opened the door. On the floor lay Dr. Hugh Baldwin. He was dead—shockingly so.

One long searching glance Mrs. Baldwin cast upon the dead body of her husband. Then she collapsed. She dropped to the floor in a dumpling heap, and lay very still, as if she herself were dead.

SAME SYMPTOMS

Excited as we were at our tragic discovery, Colt and I had to turn our backs momentarily upon the corpse of the physician while we struggled with the limp and heavy body of his widow.

We carried her to a couch in the reception office. Fortunately, Miss Simon, the reception clerk, was a self-composed young woman who could assist us without hysterics. She volunteered to resuscitate the unconscious Mrs. Baldwin while the Commissioner and I returned to the private office and closed ourselves in with the stark figure on the floor.

The appearance of that figure was ghastly to the point of the fantastic. Dr. Baldwin lay there as if in dreadful caricature of the unhappy women whom he had been unable to save, only a few hours before.

Like Lola Carewe and Christine Quires sprawled Dr. Baldwin. As their hands had been flung in twisted anguish above their heads, so Dr. Baldwin's mighty arms were turned up in a stiff attitude of mortal anguish. Lola had lain twisted at our feet, her body screwed almost into the semblance of a question mark. So twisted also was the long, strong body of this athletic physician. The unnatural curve of arms and legs, the distortion of the neck, the very pointing of his toes suggested one bizarre interrogation point.

But there was more to add to our discovery, a confounding tinge of horror. On the strained face of Dr. Baldwin there glistened the familiar moist glow in death that also had stained the lovely face of Lola Carewe. There was the same bloating of the lips and the crimson spot of blood in the corners of the mouth. Here was a masculine replica of the deaths of Lola and Christine, the scorpion of Durango had struck again.

"He is dead," the Commissioner told me with a melancholy glance.

His eyes, fixed gloomily on mine, asked questions I had no need to voice. Why and how had this man died? Had the instrument of death turned upon its master? Or had Baldwin been innocent of our suspicions? A third victim of unknown killers? We, or we at the finish of our trail? Or on the threshold of a greater mystery?

"There is no hope," repeated Thatcher Colt, "but we should take no chances. There are two other doctors with offices on the first floor. Get one of them up here."

Five minutes later, I was back in the apartment with a dark, bovine-faced Jewish physician, Dr. Tannenbaum. He immediately pronounced his colleague dead and expressed himself as amazed at the symptoms. At this, Colt glanced toward me. Here was Dr. Tannenbaum confronted with the same symptoms which Dr. Baldwin had seen the night before in Lola Carewe and Christine Quires. I remembered that Baldwin had promptly stated that Lola was a victim of heart trouble. But this Dr. Tannenbaum was instantly suspicious. In fact, he insisted that the police be notified and he flushed with astonishment upon learning that the tall, dark-haired man before him, tanned and grave, was the chief of police.

"If I can help, Commissioner—"

"I shall be glad to call on you," Colt assured him, taking his hand and while shaking it, leading him suavely to the door.

Synopsis

Lola Carewe is mysteriously murdered in her penthouse apartment at 3 o'clock New Year's morning. An hour later the body of Lola's guest, Christine Quires, is found in Lola's room. Christine had been killed first and her body hidden. Dr. Hugh Baldwin attributes both deaths due to heart failure. Guy Everett, Christine's New Year's Eve escort, claims he brought her home at 12:15 and then went riding alone on the Motor Parkway. Mrs. Carewe, Lola's mother, denies seeing Christine return. Police Commissioner Thatcher Colt discounts District Attorney Dougherty's theory that Lola was killed by a jewel thief ring she headed and that Christine met the same fate for knowing too much. Vincent Rowland, Lola's lawyer, discloses that Everett loved Lola and was jealous of Dr. Baldwin. The Commissioner telephotoes a picture of a young man, named Basil, found on Lola's dresser, to the Paris Prefect of Police requesting that he identify it and investigate Lola's past. The police are on the trail of Christine's brother, Edward, who left his Rochester home for New York after receiving a telegram New Year's Eve. Christine was to have inherited wealth shortly. Dr. Multooler, the medical examiner, contradicts Dr. Baldwin's statement that heart failure caused the deaths. Everett confesses he lied about riding on the Motor Parkway. He states Christine told him she had found out a plot to murder Lola and feared for her own life because of her knowledge, adding that Dr. Baldwin was involved. The picture of the young man found in Lola's room is identified by Paris police. The scientist employed by Colt says the girls died as a result of bites from a poison scorpion. The detectives learn that Dr. Baldwin purchased scorpions.

Madge Fears for Lillian's Safety

"I understand perfectly," I said again to Helena Brixton as she finished assuring me of her joy in having Lillian with her, "and I am so relieved that I might have known that Lillian knew of what she was speaking. One thing more. May I ask a great favor of you?"

"Most certainly," her voice had regained its usual sweetness and I saw that she was mistress of herself again.

"Will you ask Lillian to telephone us as soon as she gets here. There's something she has forgotten about which I must speak to her."

"Oh! of course. I'll attend to it without fail," she said cordially, and I salved my conscience with the reflection that I could not tell Helena Brixton or indeed, any one of my real reason for wishing to hear from Lillian as soon as she reached the Brixton home.

But there had come to me in those moments of waiting a terrifying thought. Suppose the Chinese bandits who I knew were watching my home so closely had discovered Lillian's journey and would attempt to molest her. I knew of one way in which I could guard against them when she reached the end of her journey, but I had a craving to be assured of her safe arrival.

"Thank you so much," I told Mrs. Brixton sweetly, and as soon as I had hung up the receiver, I dashed downstairs to Dicky, rushing into the room in so breathless a state that he caught me by the arm and put me into a chair, setting his other hand upon my lips so that I could not speak.

MADGE EXPRESSES FEAR

"It isn't so important that it can't wait until you get your breath," he said, inexorably, and it was not until I was breathing quietly again that he released me.

"Now I'll hear your news," he said smiling at me, and I took him by the shoulders and shook him in laughing exasperation.

"It happens to be all right this time." I said "but anything might have been happening from a fire in the nursery to Junior's being bitten by a dog."

He put up his hands and caught mine, then laughed down at me.

"It's only this," I said, feeling suddenly rather young and foolish. "I had just got to worrying for fear something might happen to Lillian on her way up there. I have had such an unreasoning terror of those Chinese ever since that day at the Ticer farmhouse."

I saw Dicky give a little shiver and knew that he was recalling, as I was, that awful moment when the Chinese outside the Ticer farmhouse had put his hand behind him and I had realized, as had Dicky when I told him of it later that the man meant to throw something at my face which would disfigure me for life.

LILLIAN GUARDED

"I should think you would have," he said. "And I'll relieve your mind about Lillian right now. Harry took her to the station and he will tell the conductor and another train hand, both of whom are friends of his, to look out for her. Your father will telephone one of his trusted agents in New York, who knows Lillian by sight, to meet that train and go with her by train and bus without her knowing it until she reaches her destination at the village near the Brixton camp. There the operative who is watching over the camp will get on the job and remain on it. Is that satisfactory?"

"Eminently so," I returned gaily, for my spirits had lifted immeasurably, not only from relief at the assurance of Lillian's safety, but because I felt myself acquitted of undue fussiness, which is a horror of mine.

"Then sit down for a minute and pull yourself together," he said, "for you have a piece of real work on hand."

"What is it?" I asked quickly, for something in his voice intrigued me.

"You're needed in the sick room," he said. "Katherine was asking for you just a minute or two ago."

"Oh, I'm so glad I can help her," I said joyfully. "Have you any idea what she wants?"

"No," he answered, "she didn't say anything except that she wanted you, but there is one sure way of finding out," he grinned at me.

"And I shall take it," I said, moving quickly to the door of the sick room and knocking at it.

THE AUTOGRAPH WRITER'S FRIEND.

We have received thousands of letters from celebrities, begging us to give them properly worded sentiments to write over their signatures in autograph albums. Some of these letters are pathetic in their heart-rending appeal. "I get so tired of all the time writing my telephone number," says Jean Harlow. We have worked earnestly gathering noble sentiments, and present herewith a few suitable selections—

"Let exuberancy of character, purity of mind, together with generous words and noble deeds mark conspicuously your whole life, as they do mine."

"May your coffee and divorce complaints against you be ever the same—without grounds."

"When shall we meet again sometime?"

"I wish you success in your chosen profession. It's lovely work if you can get it."

"'Tis beauty that doth make woman proud

Love and friendship cometh from above

Supreme Court Decision Clears the Way for Compliance With the People's Town Hall Mandate.

The County Commissioners' duty in respect to the Town Hall is clearly pointed out by the decision handed down by the Supreme Court yesterday. It is their duty to build the auditorium.

The court, in a well reasoned opinion, refused to grant an injunction against the construction of the Town Hall on the Oakland site selected by the Board of County Commissioners which recently went out of office. At the same time the court upheld the validity of the $6,000,000 bond issue authorized by the voters to pay for the project.

The present County Commissioners have let it be known they are not in sympathy with the Town Hall plan, and have threatened to abandon it. We commend to their attention the following passage from the Supreme Court decision, and recommend that they take it as their guiding principle in this business:

"It is not within our competence to pass upon the suggestion that there will be a great waste of public money if the contract is carried out. The people determined to make the expenditure and fixed the sum. As long as it is within constitutional limits we cannot review their action or set it aside."

Pittsburgh must not be allowed to suffer longer from the lack of a commodious auditorium. Almost daily we have a reminder of how seriously we are handicapped in not having a hall capable of seating many thousands of people.

We have a reminder of it in the arrangements now being made for the commencement exercises of the University of Pittsburgh on June 8. They are to be held in the Stadium because no adequate hall is available. It is announced that in case of rain the exercises will be held in Soldiers' Memorial Hall, but the 1,200 graduates will be limited to one guest each, because the hall only holds 2,400 people.

We have a reminder of it in the demand for a season of grand opera, a pleasure which Cleveland enjoys while Pittsburgh goes without it, because Cleveland has a large municipal auditorium.

We have a reminder of it in the preparation for the national political conventions. Pittsburgh never will be able to invite the Republican and the Democratic parties or the American Legion to hold their national conventions here unless we get the Town Hall. So long as we lack such an auditorium we are barred from consideration, just as if we were a second-rate town instead of one of the nation's largest cities.

It is unthinkable that Pittsburgh should continue under this handicap. The Town Hall will be built sooner or later. The people have demanded it in no uncertain way, and it is the duty of the County Commissioners to obey the mandate, no matter how content they themselves may be to do without the auditorium.

The Town Hall should be built now, because we need it, because building costs are exceptionally low, and because its construction will furnish work to many men now idle.

The Bar Housecleaning

Thorough Investigation of the Various Suspicions and Innuendoes Will Have a Salutary Effect.

While continuing to withhold the names of the lawyers against whom disbarment proceedings are to be instituted, the Bar Association has widened the scope of its investigation of questionable practices by local attorneys.

The association shows poor judgment in keeping the names of the accused secret, since it thereby fosters guessing which may result in injustice to respectable lawyers. Otherwise its policy in respect to the charges of "ambulance chasing" and the like leaves nothing to be desired.

Frank C. McGirr, a former president of the association, has called attention to stories to the effect that some of the assistant district attorneys in District Attorney Andrew T. Park's office have used their official positions to throw business to partners in their law firms. The Bar Association immediately took official cognizance by appointing a committee to investigate.

This is the right attitude. A complete housecleaning, with investigation of suspicions and innuendoes, to be followed by disbarment of all lawyers exposed as shysters, will have a healthy effect. It will protect the public and the courts from sharp practices.

It will also increase the respect of the public for the lawyers who survive the housecleaning, and will increase their self-respect.

A Blue-Lawless Sunday

Improvement Noted in Baltimore Indicates the Duty of The Pennsylvania Legislature.

The people of Baltimore, by a large majority, repealed their Blue Law last week. Sunday was their first experience of the new freedom from the ancient Puritanical ban on innocent amusements.

An observer reports there was no falling off in church attendance. The streets were more crowded than formerly in the afternoon, but the crowds were orderly folk on their way to the movies and ball games.

Street corners which heretofore have been the hangouts of young loafers were free from this annoyance and menace, for the boys had something better to do—there were sports and theaters for their entertainment.

There was no evidence, in brief, of the evils which advocates of the Blue Law predicted would follow its repeal, but on the contrary conditions showed improvement.

Baltimore's experience, with that of the other great cities of America, all of which, with the exception of Pittsburgh and Philadelphia, have done away with the eighteenth century sabbatarian enactments, indicates the duty of Gov. Pinchot and the Legislature.

Pennsylvania's Blue Law should be repealed at the next session, or a "home rule" statute, such as Baltimore's, should be passed.

His Pets

The bonehead tariff which the Administration wrote on the statute books has destroyed American trade abroad, closed American factories, driven out of the country more than 1,000 industrial plants, crippled commerce and added to the devastations of the depression.

Into the ravenous maw of prohibition go thousands of hundreds of millions of dollars yearly, a reckless waste for which the taxpayers get NOTHING in return.

Marry-Go-Round

One Woman—And Another

Somehow, when a man is thrown over, he always manages to land in another woman's arms.

* * *

Of course, a man should love a woman just as well in a rumpled bungalow apron and minus her makeup as in a backless evening gown after a fresh marcel—but don't put too much strain on his heart.

* * *

Only an amateur or a bluffer tells of the women who "pursue" him; the hall-mark of a real woman-tamer is his dead silence concerning all woman except the one to whom he happens to be making love, at that moment.

A man always subconsciously judges a woman by the number and the kind of women he hears her panning—and dislikes her accordingly.

* * *

Spinach now comes in noodles and other disguised forms—a painless way of taking your vitamins. In fact, everything has been made painless (from dentistry to divorce)—except marriage.

* * *

Real love is the kind that usually settles down into that "good-old-scout" feeling, which needs no explanations, reassurances, gallantry or coquetry to keep it alive.

* * *

A man may be parted from the woman he loves or from the woman he has married; but he can no more be torn from the woman who jollies and amuses him than a puppy from his favorite bone.

If you can think of nursing a man through the toothache or putting a mustard plaster on his chest as an "emotional experience"—that's LOVE.

* * *

Nothing seems so insulting to a modern girl's vanity as to have another woman regard her as "perfectly safe" to park a husband or boy friend with.

* * *

The Rhyming Optimist

Gay-Winged Voices

God made each bird a feathered voice
To sing all day: "Rejoice, rejoice!
Rejoice in Summer and the sun;
In filmy lace by spiders spun;
Rejoice in nodding daffodils;
In swift, cool rain across the hills!"

"Rejoice, rejoice!" they soar and sing,
"Rejoice with every flashing wing
That cleaves the blue of heaven's field;
In every gleam of gold revealed
By sunlight on the rippling wheat;
In clover blossoms, white and sweet!"

"Rejoice," they carol, "in the breeze
That adds to ours its melodies;
Rejoice in rose and brook and bee
And all bright Summer's pageantry!"
God made each bird a gay-winged voice

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, May 10.—Manhattan has innumerable sad, lonesome streets. They are particularly noticeable in those aristocratic areas running eastward off Fifth avenue in the 50's and 60's. Life seems to have run out, leaving an atmosphere of gray stagnation.

Such desolation is heightened by those forbidding iron grills blocking entrance for hoi polloi. Curtains are usually down and at night only chinks of light splatter the pavements. Residents seldom walk. They bowl up instead in quietly purring limousines. And quickly vanish.

Just now such mansions are bleaker than ever. Occupants feel the blight of withering dividends and bond defaults. That diffusing warmth of common woe so pronounced among middle class folk is never felt. Along such streets there is an inclination to tip-toe and whisper.

Sometimes at dusk, a stiff butler with side brannigans, lifts the portcullis and lowers the drawbridge to put out a cat. This is about the only stir. No canvassers approach the aloof places, for long experience has taught them of certain rebuff.

I am told there are instances where a resident may not be acquainted with a single neighbor on the block. Once in a while at windows will be seen a face of patrician chiseling as though seeking a fleeting glimpse of a world cut off. The effect is spectral.

During summer months the houses are boarded while dwellers flit from one European spa to another. Only the caretaker remains, puffing his pipe in the gloom of a basement hall. Every mansion is filled with treasures snug in a tangle of burglar alarms.

Patrolmen dislike loneliness of swank sections, but such exile is preferred to isolation in the outskirts. For on Christmas Day they are remembered substantially. Indeed, many receive more in a lump sum than the city pays them the entire year.

John Ringling never fails to watch the hazardous exploits of a group of five wire-walkers with his circus who perform 50 feet up on a single strand without net. Yet he always turns away quickly when in a pyramided peak they teeter in a breathless climax.

Then there is the woodenly inarticulate Hugo Zacchini, who is flung in a crazy sprawl entirely across the arena from the mouth of a booming cannon. Hugo's love for his art is an epic in devotion. His season earnings are spent in glittering paraphernalia for duding up his silvered cannon. The "boom" incidentally, is a phoney. An electric spring catapults him.

A high-spending bachelor recently acted as host at an after-theater party for a stage cutie. It cost him several thousands. During the festive tarantara the honored guest pleaded a headache and excused herself to lie down awhile. What she really did was to call up her boy friend in London for an hour's talk, charging the bill to her host.

While calling on this same bachelor a messenger delivered a gorgeous silk house robe which he immediately donned for a breakfast he was to eat alone. It was quite a revelation. I always save things like that "for nice."

Isn't It So?

In proportion as nations become more corrupt, more disgrace will attach to poverty and more respect to wealth.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

Maybe those questions don't mean much to you, stranger, but they're raising Cain in plenty of homes, and that's why Bessie and all her lovelorn sisters are landing on this page today.

Bessie's 18, pretty as a blossom and as eager to break into bloom. Go on with school? Complete her education before she marries Bill? Not she! She's in love. What else matters?

"Why do I need an education if I marry?" she cries. "Bill and I are crazy about each other, and I know enough to make him a nice home and help him save money. What more do I need? He doesn't care whether I've majored in math or gotten a B. A. in social science. He'd much rather have me now.

"But mother says I'll be sorry if I don't finish school; that men need smart wives. Do you think they do? Mother herself didn't have any education, yet see how happy she and dad have been. Why shouldn't Bill and I be just as happy?"

Because you and Bill aren't going to set up housekeeping in the same world that mother and dad faced, youngster. That's why.

Time was when wives didn't need education. BUT THAT WAS WHEN WIVES DIDN'T HAVE COMPETITION.

Mother didn't need to know anything except housework and baby raising, because that was all that any lady knew.

But the average modern girl knows plenty besides housework. She may not have gone to college, but she has gone to an office—and that's liberal education in itself.

It's an education in the things that interest men, in methods by which men work. It's an education, too, in the twentieth century world with its special stresses and strains.

The girl who goes to college and the girl who goes into an office both learn to meet the world, learn to work by its tempo, and adapt themselves to its conditions. But the home girl still works as her mother works; sees things as her mother saw them.

THEN HOW CAN SHE COMPETE WITH THE SMART, EFFICIENT SECRETARY IN HER HUSBAND'S OFFICE; WITH THE CLEVER COLLEGE WOMEN HE MEETS IN BUSINESS?

And that doesn't mean sex competition. It doesn't mean the allure of more fashionable clothes, or a fresher complexion—

There's more — much more—than the old sex relationship between working men and women today. There's a new business language, a new work need, a new understanding of new world standards.

Will love and lemon pies be enough to hold a man against competition like that? Will Bill, spending most of his days with live-wire office girls, be as patient with Bessie's ignorance, tardiness, general inefficiency as her dad was with her mother's? Will he be as easily satisfied with her simple, loving chatter?

Will they excuse her bewilderment, as she fails to meet their problems, and treasure her fumbling advice, or will they, with youthful brutality, tell her she's all wet and had better get wise to herself?

Once Overs

By J. J. Mundy

How are you going about it to win success in your undertaking?

Are you trying to place yourself on the strength of your associates?

Do you refer to your family or your lodge or your social club as a small wedge of recommendation?

You think you are being very subtle, perhaps, and inferring that you belong to this and that, where you do not belong.

Have some originality and don't make snobbish references to this one or that of your acquaintances.

The world is growing more practical, more honest, and is tired of the game of riding into office or getting a job on other peoples' merits.

Give honest service, squarely on your own ability and see how much more appreciated you will be.

Employers don't say any more, "who are your friends?"

They want to know what you can really do.

The Debt Transfer and Organized Minorities

By Claude G. Bowers

Author of "The Struggle for Democracy in America," "Founders of the Republic," "Jefferson and Democracy," "The Tragic Era" and other important works, now writing for the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

When Secretary Stimson sailed unexpectedly for Europe, an official statement was given out, positively stating that he would not discuss the debts or a moratorium while abroad. Having in mind offical explanations of the former journeys of Mr. Stimson and Mr. Mellon to Europe which did not square with the realities, we suggested recently that Mr. Stimson would discuss the debts, notwithstanding the official reassurance. And we were right. William Bird, correspondent in Paris of the New York Sun, says:

"Assurances that Secretary Stimson would not discuss the problem of war debts while in Europe have not been lived up to, except in the sense that Mr. Stimson has in no way committed his government. He has, however, had a series of talks with the leading statesmen of the European countries concerned."

And so he is bringing the result of these conversations back to Mr. Hoover.

Of course Mr. Stimson has not "committed his government," since he does not have the power. The government can only be committed by act of Congress, and Congress has taken its position.

Since there never was any doubt that Mr. Stimson would discuss the debts, and many believe the discussion of the debts was the primary purpose of his visit, it is unfortunate that the government issued a misleading statement. It was unnecessary, and the effect is bad. We became accustomed to misleading statements from high governmental quarters when the highest officials were engaged in the ballyhoo for the inflated market. And such lack of frankness does not make for that confidence in government so essential just now.

* * *

Meeting of Mr. Hoover And Mr. Morgan

In the speculation as to the meaning of the meeting of Mr. Hoover and John Pierpont Morgan last week, we find no reference to the debts, but we suspect that was a subject of conversation. There were many things the two men might have talked about. It is quite possible that Mr. Hoover's probing of the stock market in search of wicked Democrats and international bears, which has been a little embarrassing to the House of Morgan, may have been touched upon. Or it may be that Mr. Morgan actually has a constructive plan to bring the country out of its depression.

Twenty-five years ago the elder Morgan, who was an aggressive leader, conferred with President Roosevelt on the cure of the panic of 1907, and he made the hard condition that the President should wink at the violation of a law and permit United States Steel to absorb the Tennessee Coal and Iron Company. We can still hear the echo of the popular applause for that "patriotic" action.

Some will wonder if the debts this time are to substitute for the Tennessee Coal and Iron Company. The international bankers here are much concerned about those debts—because of the private loans that no one proposes to "cancel."

* * *

Meanwhile, in France, the indications point to the early fall of Tardieu, who is not anxious to give up the German reparations, but wants an extended moratorium; and to the elevation of Edouard Herriot to power. He has just issued a statement in which he promises "international collaboration" for economic recovery on condition of "America's participation in the debt conference at Lausanne;" and we are not participating. He is willing for France to do anything helpful provided that "France shall not alone make all the sacrifices."

Well, France has been collecting reparations all along—we took none. And France got territory—and we didn't. But France is willing to cut her reparations, which we do not get, to the extent that we cut her debt to us—which would cost her nothing. And we would pay the bill—not only of France but of the other debtor nations. Who does all the sacrificing here?

And what a condition we are in to make the sacrifice?—with a deficit of more than two billion, with back-breaking taxes, with prostrate business and industry.

* * *

Mr. Hoover Has a Promise of Co-operation

But this promise of international collaboration for economic recovery, if joined with similar promises from other nations, works in perfectly with the plan of the House, accepted by the Senate, for the President of the United States to invite an international conference for the restoration of foreign trade through the readjustment of the prohibitive tariffs that are utterly ruinous to us, and detrimental to all other nations involved.

In the event of M. Herriot's accession to power Mr. Hoover has a promise of co-operation to that end.

But there is no reason to hope that Mr. Hoover will accept the plan of Congress for that kind of collaboration.

* * *

Struggling to Balance Our Budget

In the meantime, while the debtor nations, squandering staggering sums on preparations for war, are inviting us to forgive the debt so they can have more money to spend on armament that may be turned against us, we are struggling to balance our budget by reducing the cost of government here.

And not making much headway. The economy bill, reducing governmental costs, sponsored by the leaders of both parties and the Administration, has been smashed by a revolt in the House of the rank and file of both parties. The bill, as it finally issued from the House, offers a few shavings where deep cuts were necessary. With the necessity of cutting governmental cost as much as $200,000,000, the bill provides a saving of a scant $30,000,000.

Mr. McDuffie, chairman of the Economy Committee, tells the whole story when he says:

"Although the people of the country are demanding a reduction in governmental costs, at the same time, they, aided and abetted and spurred on by organized minorities and bureaucrats, appear to be insisting upon the maintenance of this gigantic and expensive government at Washington. If they insist upon what might be termed 'luxuries' in government, they must pay the bills, which means additional tax burdens."

Sooner or later, the nation will have to decide whether organized minorities shall continue to dominate the government to suit their selfish or fanatic ends. In recent years we have not had government "of, by and for the people" but government by organized minorities.

The organized minority that put the Grundy prohibitive tariff act over and contributed mightily to the economic disaster used a different kind of threat—the money threat. Had not Mr. Grundy raised among this organized minority a million dollars for Mr. Hoover's campaign fund?

When greed, and privilege, and legislative blackmail was made respectable and dignified and patriotic in a precious few, it was inevitable that other groups less precious would adopt the method used.

And so we are rapidly becoming a government by the minority; and more and more we are legislating under the shadow of a club.
